EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

THE contest between beef and brains is still undetermined.

IF the civil authorities of the Hocking Valley of Ohio had the sand they wouldn't need the soldiers.

MR. TILDEN is spoken of for Secretary of State in Cleveland's Cabinet. What's the matter with Thomas Jefferson, John C. Calhoun or William H. Marcy?

THE Nuns of Paris are fearlessly nursing the victims of cholera. Language is inadequate to pay tribute to the self-sacrificing sisterhood of the Catholic church.

"THIS nation," says Doctor Talmage, "needs prayer as much in 1884 as it did in 1864." We think so, too—only a little more if anything, in view of the situation.

CLEVELAND'S plurality in New Jersey is 4,405. The St. John vote is 6,153. In other words, the Prohibition vote gave the electoral vote of that State to the Democrats.

THE Centre Hall Reporter has information that Mr. Love will contest the election of Leonard Rhone. We are inclined to believe the Reporter has information on several subjects which it really knows nothing about.

REV. HENRY S. WILLIAMSON, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church of Trenton, N. J., committed suicide at 7 o'clock on Thursday morning by shooting himself through the head. No sufficient cause for the act is known.

IT is a shame that McCullough should be permitted to wander about the country in his demented condition. As his friends are either unable, or unwilling, to restrain him the authorities should protect him against himself.

IT is worthy of note that the city of Augusta, Me., Mr. Blaine's home, signified its devotion to him by a vote of nearly two to one in his favor; while Clevelands's city of Buffalo repudiated him, giving the Republican candidate a plurality of nearly 1500 votes.

"BALTIMORE'S Democratic Roughs—Assaults upon Letter Carriers—A Mail Delivery Stopped—A Negro Killed," is the quadruple title of a telegram from the "Monumental City." That illustrates magnificently the peaceable condition of the Sunny South in times of political excitement.

IN 1776 American whipped England, but if the future shall prove that Democracy has triumphed it will show that England has knocked out America in intrigue and diplomacy in the first round. England could well afford to spend $100,000,000 to secure a Democratic triumph.

NEVER in the history of this country was a presidential candidate beaten in his own election district, in his own ward, in his own city, and in his own county. It was reserved for Grover Cleveland to be thus humiliatingly repudiated by his own neighbors. He was beaten in his own ward, city, county and congressional district.

READ the blood-thirsty item which the Centre Hall Reporter gives publicity to and after you have read it tremble in your boots: "The Republican managers have laid a plot to steal the State of New York for Blaine. If they attempt to carry it out they must first walk over the dead bodies of every Democrat from Maine to California—including Centre county." Now, Freddy, after the Republicans have permitted you to steal the Southern States regularly every four years for a quarter of a century you might be generous enough to let the Republicans steal at least one State.

Christian Ministers.

One of the most sorrowful facts of the present day is the slight esteem in which the Christian ministry is held by persons of other and less holy callings. We do not mean that ministers are not as well or even more highly thought of than laymen, but circumstances occurring daily prove that the average ministers do not fill as high a position in the appreciation of the world as the character of their calling should entitle them, or as we would like them to occupy.

In our opinion, the Christian ministry is the most exalted vocation that a man can select for a life-work. So divine and holy is its mission that he who can fit himself for its duties has reason to be happy above ordinary mortals. To devote one's self exclusively to the salvation of erring creatures is indeed God-like, and it has in it enough to awaken the intensest enthusiasm on the part of its devotees. Then, the learning which will equip a Christian minister as he should be equipped is necessarily very large. In comparison with it the study required for the medical or legal professions is as nothing. The Christian ministry alone of all the professions is calculated to call forth a man's best efforts, because in every pursuit of it he is elevated nearer heaven.

For us, then, to hear a man speaking to or of a minister in a light or trifling way is extremely shocking. He should be always held in reverence. His calling and office should at all times command respect. To revile one of God's ministers is a serious offence against civilization, morality and true politeness. To criticise them is presumptuous on the part of the world. Advice from one of these men is golden and should be heeded carefully and followed closely. No position of power and authority will warrant the arrogant and proud layman in defying the power of the minister. We often have heard the layman attempt this and the effort has always aroused our contempt for the offender. A more thorough respect for Christian ministers will make the world better and holier.

They are dependent on others for their worldly sustenance and should receive larger support than they do. To limit the minister in his claims upon the "bread which perishes" is virtually to rob the Creator. Reform in this matter is desirable, and seems absolutely necessary for those who would save their own souls.

THE cholera is spreading in Paris All the efforts made by the authorities have failed, up to the present time, to do more than confine it to the poorest quarters of the city. A number of fresh deaths are reported in our despatches. The victims are seized with this terrible disease in the most sudden manner. Many have been stricken on the streets and in omnibuses, and other public places. In spite of the pending danger from the epidemic the city is said to be as gay as ever. The theatres are crowded and the other places of amusement are thronged, as usual, by night. Eastern and central portions of the city are the ones most affected. The sanitary condition of the dwellings in the old portions of the city must be frightful. The French are not particular people about sanitary regulations. Foreigners traveling from city to city in France cannot fail to observe the utter disregard of proper sanitary arrangements and adequate sewerage.

DISPATCHES mention that a number of "Independents" have written to Blaine expressing their regret that they voted against him. They say they realize since the election for the first time what sort of a thing a Democratic success would be, as they see the character and temper of the men as they come to the front as soon as it is imagined that the Democrats have secured the power.

Progress of the Count.

The canvassing of the vote cast in New York has proceeded more rapidly than was generally expected and the errors and corrections thus far have made no material change in the situation. It becomes more evident, however, that the information upon which the Republican Committee based their action relates to the vote in either New York or Brooklyn, perhaps both. This is made plain by the squirming of the Democrat press and the contortions and gyrations of the Cleveland managers. The nearer the counties of New York and Kings are approached, the louder the protestations that nothing wrong will be discovered there, and the more vehement the denunciations of the Republicans for attempting to steal the Presidency by thwarting the will of the people.

Just why Democratic editors should manifest such extreme nervousness respecting the canvass of the votes in New York and Brooklyn is a matter concerning which we need offer no opinion. The absurdity of charging Republicans with being engaged in a wrong attempt to falsify the record in the large Democratic cities, where the opportunities for detection are so numerous, while no one has dared to venture even the slightest hint that frauds were attempted in the Republican counties, must be apparent to all who understand Democratic tactics. The confessed frauds in Albany have placed the Democratic Committee in a very unpleasant predicament, and so long as the evidence of "stealing" and "counting out," is all against their side they ought to confine their abuse of Republicans within the limits of reason and decency.

The statements of the Republican Committee, strengthened as they now are by the growing desperation of the Democrats, leave no room to doubt that some startling revelations will be made within the next day or two. At all events, the canvass will go on to the end, and if it is not settled in accordance with the principles of justice and right it will not be the fault of those who hold in their keeping the interests of the Republican party. —Pittsburg Commercial.

A Good Programme.

The idea contained in Fred Kurtz's editorial in the last issue of the Centre Reporter pleases us so well that we transfer it entire to the columns of the NEWS. If carried out it will please us admirably. Read it, please, and see if you do like it also:

Don Cameron intends to make Gen. Beaver his successor in the United States Senate. The next Legislature of this state will be largely Republican in both branches and Don Cameron will have it under his thumb and intends to use his power over that body so as to elect Gen. Beaver U. S. Senator, and he (Cameron) will not be a candidate in consequence. The reason that impels Senator Cameron to take this step, is General Beaver's defeat for governor two years ago. He alleges the fight was against himself, and as Gen. Beaver was an innocent sacrifice on the Senator's account, Mr. Cameron now magnanimously steps forward to make Beaver senator as a reward for his defeat for governor. It is characteristic of the Camerons never to desert their friends and Mr. Cameron certainly takes high and elevated ground in his friendship for Beaver and will do a handsome act rare in politics. We have politicians that will cut the throats of their best friends if a political point can be gained thereby—it is one of the pernicious things in politics, and the men who will do it are generally found devoid of honor when discreditable methods serve their purposes better.

As we are to have a Republican U. S. Senator why of course our county pride will cause us to look with pleasure upon that singular, but highly commendable, move of Senator Cameron. With an influential member like Curtin in the House, and Beaver in the Senate, Centre county and Central Pennsylvania will be a power at Washington which will not be insignificant where our people have interests at stake.

We could wish the complexion of the Senate to be such as to secure the election of a Democrat to the U. S. Senate, but as it will surely be a Republican Centre county people will join in the pleasure we feel upon the prospect of Gen. Beaver being the man.

Some Wounds to be Healed.

The National Republican contest will not pass into history without leaving some wounds which may fester into sores that will likely give trouble to the party for some time to come. The mismanagement, or want of management, of the State central committee of the State of New York, of the campaign in that State, will rankle in the hearts of Mr. Blaine's friends for years to come, and whether true or false, will ever give rise to the belief that the indifference manifested by that committee was the result of the committee being under the management and control of Arthur delegates to the Chicago convention.

Mr. Blaine's friends have been charged with the defeat of Judge Folger for Governor of New York, which brought Cleveland into political prominence, and present results will, even with those who reason from surface indications only, be attributed as the return blow.

The magnificent indifference of Roscoe Conkling and the open political treachery of his political friends will confirm the faithful in the belief that the failure to carry the State of New York for Blaine was wholly due to the causes indicated.

When the Republican party decided to carry the State of Ohio at the October election, they entered into the work with spirit and with a purpose, and that same spirit and kind of work would have carried the State of New York by twenty thousand had it been applied. Able speakers volunteered their services to the State central committee of New York, and received for answer "We will conduct our campaign in our own way," while at the same time Republicans of the western part of that State were complaining that they had had "no meetings to rouse us up."

It is perhaps best that the facts be thus frankly stated, for wounds will not heal unless the cause of their soreness is fully understood and intelligently treated.

Now—

That Cleveland is known to be elected let the people understand that it is

A victory for free ttade.

That a confessed libertine will occupy the White House.

That it is a National disgrace.

That mugwump Republicans and wumpmug Prohibitionists did it.

That the noblest and best man in America was defeated.

That he can survey the wreck with tranquillity, as the loss is not Blaine's but the country's.

That an attempt will be made to pass a free trade bill;

And perhaps a Rebel war claims bill;

And perhaps a Rebel pension bill.

That the cause of temperance has made enemies of its best friends and has been retarded a half century.

Because of wretched blundering, the man is elected who was repudiated in his own city and election ward, while the man whom both his native state and adopted state delighted to honor is defeated, a narrow plurality of 1000 accomplishing the dire calamity.

That the man who is believed to be guilty of sins too gross to publish or even mention in polite conversation is the President-elect of the United States.

He is worse than a Nero or a Caligula.

We can stand it if the country can.

THE assurance of a Democratic majority in the next house of Congress gives Frank Hurd an inspiration of hope. He will contest the election of his Republican competitor.

Pennsylvania's Vote.

The result in Pennsylvania is especially gratifying to every Republican, and to none more than the State Committee. Headquarters were opened as far back as five months ago, and every day was applied to careful and systematic organization. So well was the Committee convinced of its ability to approximatie the majority, that on the morning of the election it published a detailed estimate by counties, and in hardly an instance was the majority overstated.

Pennsylvania gives 80,429 plurality for Blaine, more than doubling the majority for Garfield. Blaine's personal popularity added greatly to this result, the tariff added more, and solid work did the rest. We gain four members of Congress, one State Senator, and between fifty and sixty members of the House, thus insuring at least one U. S. Senator and proper apportionment bills.

THERE was a peculiar inappropriateness, remarks the Pittsburg Commercial, in the selection of Mr. Conkling as one of the counsel for the Democratic National Committee which was overlooked in the haste and excitement of the moment. It is true that he was chosen for the ostensible purpose of checkmating a bold conspiracy to defraud Cleveland out of his election, but it did not occur to them at the moment that he had made himself thoroughly familiar with the history of Democratic frauds in New York, and was authority for the statement that in 1868 over 30,000 fraudulent votes had been cast in the two cities of New York and Brooklyn, and that Republicans who had been honestly elected were counted out. The committee had also forgotten that it was mainly through Mr. Conkling's influence that the law creating the office of Supervising Inspector was passed.

THAT Rebel newspaper, the Lock Haven Daily Democrat, is presumptuous enough to boast that the Democratic candidate for President got 79,360 plurality of the popular vote. It also quotes other Democratic presidential candidates who, it says, received even larger majorities. The Democrat is probably correct, but it is only because the miserable shot gun policy of the South prevents the Republican vote of that section from asserting itself. This has merely been "winked at" in the past, because the vote of the South was not necessary to the perpetuation of good government. We venture the assertion that if a free ballot could have been had on the occasion of each presidential election since 1860, no Democratic candidate would have received a popular majority.

SENATOR MCDONALD of Indiana puts himself on record as a man of sense, to whom peace and public order are more important than partisan spirit. He says: "The vote in New York is altogether too close for either side to claim the State with absolute certainty. This is not the time for inflammatory speeches, but citizens should be prepared to await quietly and calmly a peaceful settlement of the question by the proper authorities." If the Democratic party would put a straitjacket on its Barnums and Gormans, and go by the advice of the cool and able McDonald it would strengthen its position 50 per cent.

THE name of Henry Clay will shine in the gallery of American statesmen generations after James K. Polk has faded from the memory of men. And the name of James G. Blaine will shed a lustrous glow upon the pages of history ages and ages after Grover Cleveland has vanished in the oblivion of utter forgetfulness.

ABOUT half of those members who voted for the Morrison bill in the Forty-eight Congress will be missing from the Forty-ninth. No Free Trade for a while yet.

Poetry.

THE GOLD MINER'S GIRL.

Hard to describe her! Not so, my boy!
Gold to be useful isspart alloy—
Without some sorrow there'll be no joy.

And she is as good as gold, old man,
Just as good as you have in that pan,
Although a thousand you said it ran.

She has eyes like a fawn, and soft brown hair,
But she's nigh six foot, with shoulders square;
She's lots of muscle and some to spare.

Her cheeks oft wear a delicate bloom,
Like the pink inside of a young mushroom—
'Tis caused by the use of her mother's broom.

You can bet your life she keeps things clean,
Not a speck of dirt or a cobweb seen;
It's the slickest cabin in Bogg's ravine.

Do you see that hump right there on my head?
That came from her broom, and I felt it, Ned!
I got "too funny" is what she said.

She won't stand hugging—my only chance
Is to squeeze her waist in the whirling dance,
And get for my pains a finishing glance.

She's awful jolly and full of fun,
She never jokes till it's overdone,
But calls the turn ere you've scarce begun.

Strong in the struggle with care and strife,
She's just the girl for a miner's wife,
The feathered edge of a mountain life.

AT THE OLD STAND.

The Summer season's over,
No more I've got to grind
This clumsy old hand organ,
My daily bread to find.

No more I've got to wander
Adown the dusty street,
With all the noisy children
Dancing upon my feet.

No more my lilac monkey
Will climb the brown-stone front,
From basement unto cornice,
And for the shekel hunt.

I've packed away my organ,
No more with it I'll roam;
I've sent the lilac monkey
Unto his winter home.

Full soon you'll see me sitting,
With smiles serene and bland,
Harvesting shining ducats
At my old chestnut-stand.

THE WISH-BONE.

Slender and shining, prophetic bone,
We pulled it the future to divine;
Her bare pink palm, the bit in my own,
Told that wish and wish-bone both were mine.

"What did you ask for?" whispered my Rose,
Looking up shyly with eyes so true.
"I wished," I answered, drawing her close
"The woman I win might look like you:

"Her eyes as brown as a forest brook,
Her cheek as pink as a sea-shell's tint,
A tender mouth, and a saucy look,
And pale brown hair with a golden glint;

"In short, that my future wife might be
You, dear little Rose, and only you."
Hiding her face in my breast, said she,
"Isn't it funny?—I wished that too."

Our Story Teller.

The Tramp.

"Now, see here, my friend," said John Proctor, his honest eyes looking gravely into the tramp's face, as he balanced a dime on the tip of his finger, "I want to present you to a little matter of statistics. You know, as well as I, that the territory is swarming with men of your class. No less than six, begging for money, have stopped me on the street today; while down there at the yard," indicating with his hand a row of tall lumber piles surrounding a building in the distance, "we have not had three applications for work in a month."

"That's always the way," the tramp muttered. "Say we won't work; they won't give us a show. If a man gets down there's no getting up again."

There was something almost pathetic in his very sullenness as he shuffled away, his rags flapping in the strong breeze.

"Come back here, will you?" John Proctor's voice was stern and decisive. The tramp halted, then shuffled back again.

"Come down to the yard this afternoon and I'll give you a job. But take this money and get filled up first." The man did not immediately extend his hand to take it. In the moment or two that elapsed the young lumberman thought he detected a trace of something allied to resentful pride in his bearing. But the illusion vanished as a grimy hand closed eagerly upon the silver. Proctor looked after him with a quizzical smile. Five minutes later he knew his own name would be the toast of a drunken crowd of loafers in the saloon around the corner. To be sure it would help to advance a certain Quixotic reputation which had attached itself to him since his first advent in this little New Mexican town. But he steadily adhered to his creed: Grant that 99 out of every 100 of this population were thieves and mendicants, he was wont to say, he preferred to be victimized by the ninety and nine rather than miss the hundredth man.

As John Proctor took his way down through the park in the direction of his office, his eyes fell cheerily upon the incongruous array of buildings that constituted the town. Had not every foot of lumber been supplied from his own lumber-yard? And did not this avalanche of trade mean—Annie? Nothing could be mean or poor which brought these weary years of waiting to an end. How she would rejoice over them, that quiet little denizen of western prairies, who had lived among the monotonous levels of central Illinois all her life!

That afternoon as Proctor was making out an order for several car loads of fishing lumber, a shadow darkened the door, and the tramp stood before him. He could not repress an exclamation of surprise. The vagabond observed it, and his face lowered as he asserted himself defiantly. "Yes, I've come," he said. "What are you going to give me to do?" Proctor put on his hat and went with him into the yard, where an empty car was waiting to be filled. He showed the man a small slip of paper tacked on the end, and was about to explain where he would find the material designated, when the fellow threw off his coat and deftly attacked a pile of scantling, which happened to be the first item that was on the list.

"Hulloa!" said Proctor, gazing at him in surprise. "You seem to know something about this business."

"A little,' replied the man shortly. The young lumberman took his way back to the office.

At 6 o'clock when the hands came up to receive pay for their day's labor, Proctor saw his protege standing off a little distance. As the men filed out the agent of the Plumbago City train came running into the office with a package in his hand.

"Here, Proctor, run them over quickly and sign this receipt. It's the $5,000 from Juarez & Signor."

The lumberman hastily signed his name to the receipt, and the agent hurried out.

Left alone Proctor drew from his pocket a long leather pocket-book and laid the notes carefully inside. As he thrust this into his breast pocket he chanced to glance toward the window, and encountered the hungry eyes of the tramp. The man seemed about to speak, then changed his mind and sauntered away. A vague anxiety assailed Proctor. It was long after banking hours; there was no help for it; he must be the custodian of his treasure until morning. He drew off his coat, and placed it beneath his pillow. Then he examined the barrels of a pistol. Reassured by his precaution, he sank into a heavy sleep.

Several hours before a man had crawled upon a low pile of planks, flanked by two others of towering height. As he stretched himself at full length, with a bundle of shakes for a pillow, he philosophically reflected that such a bed was not to be despised. He had travelled half way across the continent without once knowing the shelter of a civilized roof.

A little later two glowing sparks of fire seemed to glide down the railroad track, steal around the office and disappear within the long drying-shed at its rear. The lowest Mexican peon, who all his life goes half clothed, half-fed and unsheltered, handles his cigar or cigarette with the fine pomposity and careless grace of the proudest hidalgo.

John Proctor awoke that night to find himself assailed by a foe mightier than his feeble imagination had pictured. He tried to rise, but found himself to be unable, oppressed by a terrible sense of suffocation from dense volumes of smoke which filled the air, through which vast sheets of flame darted their forked tongues toward him. Suddenly the wall of flame and smoke was parted, and the face of the tramp bent over him. He was roughly shaken, pulled out of the bed, half dragged, half carried through the little private office and dragged into the large room beyond, where the fire had begun its work of devastation. The voice and memory came back, and he shouted "My notes! In my coat pocket, under the pillow—let me go!"

For an answer the roof seemed to slowly vibrate to and fro, then sank down with a sudden crash.

With half-dazed senses, John Proctor turned to the scene before him. There was still something to be done. The cream of the stock had been destroyed, but unless some piles of lumber to the right of the building were speedily removed, the fire would communicate with the whole outside stock, stretched for several hundred yards along the railroad track. He turned to the crowd of men who stood there, inactive, gazing upon the scene: "Come on and help us save the lumber!"

The men worked like heroes, and every piece of lumber was removed to a safe distance.

That night, worn and wearied, John Proctor sat down to rest upon the wheel of his own copying press. He knew that this disaster had wrought his irreparable ruin. If he could only have saved that $5,000, or if he had not been so ambitious. Annie had been ready—poor little girl. She had even proposed bringing her piano to this raw Southern town, and eking out their income with the result of their own labors. On one point he was resolved. Whenever he got square with the world again he would put pride in his pocket and humbly presenting himself before the little woman ask her to share his fortunes, for better or for worse. Oh, God! how long would it be? A sharp groan escaped his lips.

Suddenly he arose and stood erect. His quick ear had caught the sound of some heavy body slowly moving over the ground. "Who is there?"

"Only me. Is that you, boss?"

John Proctor bent forward and perceived a man slowly crawling along in the shadow of a pile of joists. As the figure emerged into the moonlight he saw that the fellow dragged one leg helplessly after him. His suspicions melted away beneath his natural warmth of heart.

"Are you hurt?"

"Only a falling timber, boss, but the fire got into my eyes, and I can't see very well."

He had drawn himself to Proctor's feet, and stopped, turned a little upon his side, his head propped up with his hand.

"You see, when I came through the door something fell against me, and not seeing you, and not being able to get about very well, there were so many of those cussed Mexican theives about, I was afraid they would make off with this"—holding out a flat leather book which John Proctor seized with a glad exclamation. The man went on talking in an absent way.

"I wouldn't have liked to have you think ill of me. You're the first man who gave me a chance since I got down, I wa'nt always a loafer, sir. You spoke of my knowing something about the business, and to be sure I ought if fifteen years as a 'sorter' in the Wisconsin lumber regions can teach a man anything of lumber. But when my wife died I struck off out West. It's been hard luck ever since—and my little girl—back there with her grandparents"—

His voice seemed to fail for weakness.

"What have you eaten to day?" asked the other sharply. The man answered reluctantly and almost in a tone of apology. "You see, sir—down there among the lumber piles—how could I?"

John Proctor was a man given more to action than speech. "Do you think you could hold on to my back while I carried you down to the hotel?" he said.

"Why, sir! It wouldn't be fit."

"Shut up! Put your arms around my neck."

The office and barroom of the hotel held its usual quota of respectable loafers when John Proctor entered with the uncouth figure on his back. A gurgle of laughter ran through the crowd, but it suddenly ceased when the young man went straight to the clerk, saying in clear, ringing tones; "Give me the best room you have. This man, who saved my life last night, is badly hurt. Some of you," turning to the idlers, "go at once for a surgeon on the Atchison road."

A dozen men sprang forward to relieve him of his burden, to help him carry the poor fellow to a comfortable room, where he was gently laid upon the bed. The sufferer received these attentions in silence. His dim eyes stared incredulously about the room and into the kindly faces bending over him. That anything like this should happen to him! How long would it last? Would they let him have one good night's rest before turning him out again? When once more on the desolate plain, wandering through the sage brush, mesquite and soapweed, it would seem like some strange dream. But what was this? The stalwart young lumberman speaking huskily to the doctor.

"And mind, McLean, do your best. I owe him more than I can tell you, Put him in good trim to take the foremanship of my yard when I get stocked up."

The silly old vagrant buried his face in his pillow and wept.

Peter Herdic's Failure.

In 1878 Peter Herdic, the great lumber king, lobbyist, and speculator of Williamsport, Penna., who was supposed to be worth $10,000,000, made an assignment. From all accounts his financial wreck was complete, and the consequent disaster was widespread throughout the lumber and semi-bituminous coal regions of Pennsylvania. Herdic's heaviest creditors were William Weightman, the Philadelphia chemist and quinine monopolist, and R. J. C. Walker, Weightman's son-in-law. These creditors were able to manipulate the affairs of Herdic so that at a Marshal's sale of over half a million dollars' worth of his property they bought the whole of it in for $4,000. This property consisted of $300,000 worth of real estate in Williamsport, 16,000 acres of coal land in Tioga and Lycoming counties, and 14,000 acres of timber land in the same region.

In 1880, Herdic having passed through bankruptcy, his assignees, Frederick and Bentley, sold $1,250,000 of his assets. Herdic had sworn that he was not worth a dollar, but at this sale he was the principal bidder. The assets consisted of $250,000 in the stock of the many ventures of Herdic, in which his fellow-townsmen had invested largely. These included the Williamsport and Canada Lumber company, the Robert Morris Land and Coal Company, and the Lycoming Gas and Water Company. The balance of the assets were book accounts, ranging in items of from $5,000 to $90,000 each in amount. An account against William Stoddard was sold for 50 cents. A claim against the Lycoming Gas and Water Company for $48,000 brought 30 cents, and one for $49,000 against the Williamsport manufacturing Company was knocked down for 30 cents. Other accounts of from $25,000 to $60,000 sold for a few cents. The entire list of assets realized but $1,500 and all that represented any value were secured by Herdic.

The matter of the Marshal's sale of 1878 was allowed to rest without question until 1883. Then Herdic's attorney, on the ground that the sale was illegal, procured an order for another sale, and had the same property sold and bought it in for $4,000. No title having passed under this sale, Herdic's attorney, Clinton Lloyd, has entered suit against Weightman and Walker to have their sale and title set aside and the sale of 1883 made valid. This suit is to be tried at the December term of the Lycoming County Court, and will reopen the Herdic affairs and circumstances attending his bankruptcy. It will doubtless result in counter proceedings in which the peculiarities of the Assignee's sale of 1880 will be made clearer. The revising of the title of Weightman & Walker in the coal and lumber property of Lycoming and Tioga counties would materially affect those great interests in that region.

A Chapter on Betting.

From the Brooklyn Eagle.

I did not bet any money on the recent election in Ohio. It has been many years since I upheld my political principles by coining them for base drachmas. Years ago, when I was young and charming, rather a trifle more young than I was much more charming, I bet a box of cigars with a political foe, but an esteemed personal friend, on the election of Mr. Hayes. To give him a show for his white alley, I bet him a hat on the result in New York. The returns promptly decided that I lost the hat, and the United States Congress and the High Joint Arbitration Commission, after gravely considering the question for many weeks, finally informed me that I had won the box of cigars. I never dreamed that such a simple bet would throw the republic into such a painful state of suspense, excitement and confusion. I said then that never again would I thoughtless by tamper with the peace and happiness of my country, though all my political foes went bare-headed and I had to pick up stubs for my personal smoking all the days of our respective and respected lives.

I paid my hat bet. I went to the hatter with my friend and had his head blocked for a special order. His blocked head fairly swam with joy when I told him I was going to have a hat made specially for him. He said:

"Robert—"

The sober, solemn truth is he said "Bob," but that doesn't look well in print, and I hate the name anyhow.

"Robert, if you win the cigars, which, heaven forbid, I will go to Havana and make them myself."

I knew he would not far better than he did.

The hat was made under the personal supervision of the hatter, by and with the advice and consent of myself. It was a slick, shiny hat. It was about eighteen inches high and as symmetrical as a stove pipe. It was the same size all the way up. The brim was about an inch and a quarter wide, flat and straight as a silver dollar. It would have been the pride of a St. Patrick's day procession. It was the awfullest hat. Strong men shuddered when they saw it. I don't believe such a hat ever was made before or behind.

Well, I gathered about a score of our mutual friends. We got the band out, set the hat on top of a dry goods box in an open wagon and paraded down to my friend's store, and I presented the hat with an elaborate and ornate address. Men said it was the greatest effort of my life. I think it was. It not only fatigued me, but the people who heard it.

When the court of arbitration at last decided the other bet, the band and the crowd came out again, and my foe presented me with a box of cigars. At the conclusion of the presentation speech he proposed that we smoke the weed of peace. I could not refuse. I faltered my thanks, lighted a cigar and puffed twice or thrice.

That was nearly eight years agone, and yet sometimes I am aroused from the profoundest slumber in the dead of night by the lingering farewell of that cigar. A policeman, who accidentally happened to be awake that afternoon, came along and arrested me on a charge of disorderly conduct, arson and assault with intent to commit hydrophobia. The magistrate smelled my breath as I plead not guilty, and fined me $10. I went home, and a commitee of my neighbors waited on me at long range, and gave me twenty-four hours to leave the State. I left the box of cigars on the office steps, and two tramps were found dead beside it next morning. The Board of Health filed information against me for conspiracy, seized the cigars and threw them into the Mississippi river. All the fish between Burlington and Keokuk died that week. I took down my shotgun, breathed into it, pointed it at a dog and he turned into a stone. I blew fiercely down the barrel of the gun, intending to hunt for my foe, and the gun burst on the spot. I—but why recount the harrowing experiences of that week of horror? I only mention these few leading facts, because Truth with a big T is so sadly seldom during this campaign, and I wish to introduce a little of it to leaven the canvass.

No, if I knew I could lose all the hats and win all the cigars in America on New York alone, I would not bet that Mr. Blaine will carry Georgia by ever so small a majority. I expect to wear a straw hat all winter, and I have given up the use of tobacco in any form. I smoke only cigarettes.

Cannibalism.

In 1859 human flesh was exposed as butcher's meat in the market of Duketown, Old Calabar. In Brass (or the Mimbe country) cannibalism often occurs. Even within the last year a chief of that district, named Imamy, killed two Acreeka people who were sacrificed to the manes of his father. In Brass, as in Bonny, they eat all enemies taken in war, and they put forth, as a justification for this, that devouring the flesh of their enemies makes them brave. The accounts given of the killing of a native for the purposes of cannibalism, of which an English writer was an eye witness, is most admirably graphic and striking.

All the honesty in the world ain't lawful tender on the streets for a loaf of bread, but let the man go out and pla a smart game ov three kard monte, and he kan make an inkum at it.—Josh Billings.

An Astonishing Story.

A dog belonging to the B——'s which was a great favorite of theirs and regarded as of thoroughly irreproachable training, was charged by some of the neighbors with worrying sheep at night. The family rebutted this charge on the ground that the dog was fastened in their kitchen at night, and was never let out until the servants came down in the morning.

The farmers, however, persisted that they knew the dog well and had seen him going from the sheepfold, though he had managed to escape them. When this was urged so strongly as to make it imperative on the B——'s to take some further steps, one of the daughters volunteered to sleep in the kitchen and watch the dog's behavior.

When they made up the young lady's bed the dog seemed very restless and strange, but by and by he settled down and all was silent.

A little after midnight he got up, came to the bed and sniffed about until he had satisfied himself that the lady was not awake. Then he leaped into the window seat, undid the latch of the window, which he opened and then disappeared.

After a long interval he came back, closed and fastened the windows and finished by licking his own feet, and the marks which he had left by springing on the floor. To the terror of the seeming sleeper he now came and closely scrutinized her, but she kept still and he at last crept to his own bed.

As soon as she heard the servants stirring the lady rose and slipped through the door. But the guilty dog had marked her. He sprang up and made a dash at her with most undisguised fury, for he saw that his secret was discovered and his character blasted by one whom he now regarded as a hateful spy.

Fortunately, she got the door fast shut in time and at once alarmed the house. But the dog was now so furious that no one dared go in the kitchen, and at last a gun was brought, pointed through an aperture, and he was shot dead.

An Autumn Musing.

[South and West].

"Is this occupied?" she twittered. She had saffron hair and wore a Jersey. She wore other articles too numerous to mention, also. Her face had a bilio-poetic expression.

"Half of it is at your disposal," said the editor, as he felt a blush stealing around behind his ears and a cold wave coming up his back to meet it.

"Then I guess I'll set down." And she set without any guess work about it.

The sun was sinking in the west. (The sun rarely sinks in the east.) The western sky was 18k. gold with rose-leaf alloy. The earth appeared as if the heavenly hosts had melted all their harps of gold and poured the liquid on wood, meadow and stubble-field.

"How beautiful is nature!" exclaimed the editor, wondering how much of her was artificial. "How beautiful is the setting sun! See how the earth is made an open gold mine, and the houses, mean and grand, given cathedral windows!"

Her lips parted, but no words came forth; however, she nestled closer to him and punched him in the ribs. "Ah," thought the editor, "here is a rare soul that appreciates all the beauties about us and loves nature as the dame deserves."

The train had just reached an apple orchard. The trees were loaded with fruit, red and gold. More than this, the editor was hungry. "O my soul," exclaimed the hungry scribe, feeling that the expression was charmingly ambiguous just then, "drink in the beauties nature spreads over hill and yale with such lavish hands! See, fair maiden, those apples, hanging like spheres of gold, dyed with golden sunset blushes; what more beautiful sight can man see when he is not gazing upon thee? No wonder it is a popular fancy that the forbidden fruit was an apple! Who could resist it? Tell me, sweet one, dost thou not love the apple and prize it above all other fruit?"

"Y-a-a-s, but they'll make you mighty sick if you eat 'em when they're green."

The editor subsided.

A New Way to Pay Old Debts.

From a Paris Letter.

Yesterday, as I was going through Furtuny street, I noticed that Sarah Bernhardt's hotel had an appearance of life and animation about it very different from the silence of the past few days. Being of an inquisitive turn of mind, I was going to ask a neighbor what new comedy she was acting for the benefit of her creditors, when a tradesman I knew stepped out of the house, and relieved my curiosity by telling me she wanted to pay her debts, and for this purpose had asked her creditors to meet. Frs. 500,000 is the trifling sum she owes, and offers to pay off at the rate of frs. 300 per day. Even at this rate, considering the number of creditors, they cannot be paid for five years, provided, added my friend, she does not meanwhile die or become insane, either which it likely enough. The French do not like her, she has lost all prestige in their eyes. She owes the little success she had last year in the "Dame aux Camellias" to a new way she had invented of dying, very effective from its being so true, but most distressing to look at, and very trying to the nerves. Frenchmen enjoy strong emotions, and a play to be a success must make them either cry or laugh.

A Science of Memory.

Washington has a "teacher of memory," who says: "In a few lessons I enable one to memorize the most difficult things without an effort."

"How can that be done?" asked a Star man.

"Oh, it's a matter of association according to a system I have worked upon for twenty-five years. It is all based upon the alphabet and numbers. I take a person and in a few hours get them so that they can repeat or reproduce a long poem which I have read to them twice, or, at most, three times. They can repeat it backward or forward or give you any line you call for by number. I had a boy about twelve years old who, after learning the system, went to hear Beecher and Cook lecture and afterward repeated the lectures to an audience without having taken a note. He repeated Beecher's lecture at the Young Men's Christian Association rooms on New York avenue. Of course he did not give every word the lecturer used, but he covered every point in its regular order, just as the speaker had done, curtailing it sufficiently to be able to give in half an hour what it took an hour to deliver originally.

"Do many come to you to have their faculties cultivated?"

"Yes, a great many of all classes. Some students, reporters—more particularly official reporters of the Senate and House—lawyers and preachers. Preachers and lawyers particularly; the former to acquire an aptness in memorizing their sermons and the latter to memorize authorities and dates. Orators also, who memorize their speeches.

"Then there is another class—the department clerks and persons preparing for civil service examinations. Before going in for an examination many of them come to me to learn to memorize dates and events, location of rivers, historical, statistical and practical facts, etc.

"I had a navy officer here not long ago, who was preparing for an examination for promotion, and perfected himself in the system so that he could without difficulty remember anything he desired.

"There is an old lady, between seventy and eighty years old, who, with her daughter, has taken instructions, and she says that she finds no difficulty in remembering and repeating all that she reads. She says she can take two poems she has read and repeat them alternately, a line from each."

How to get Fat.

From the San Francisco Argonaut.

To eat supper just before going to bed is a great aid toward getting fleshy. The food so taken goes all to fat. A nap after each meal is also conducive to the same great end, but gentle exercise should be taken between meals to promote appetite. Large doses of fresh air, avoidance of envious thoughts, entire contentment with one's lot in life, one's children, husband, relatives and friends, complete self-satisfaction—all are conducive to the same great end. There is one great advantage derived from the craze on fat or no fat. It is a poor rule that don't work both ways, and many of the laws for gaining or losing flesh are the same and are great health promoters. The formation of tennis, skating, swimming and walking clubs, the patronizing of them by both stout and thin alike, is taking greatly from the death rate of our women. The role of invalid is no longer fashionable and it is considered rather a reproach to be delicate. San Franciscans are rivaling English in their physique and power of endurance. Small waists and feet, or rather shoes, are going out of style, and physicians who make female complaints a specialty are losing money. Our growing girls are well developed for their age and following the example of their mothers, are devoted to all manner of physical exercises. Pretty girls naturally, perfect health will make them beautiful and strong enough to stand any amount of mental culture. What may we not predict for the future of San Francisco, ruled by the sons of such women? for after all, a boy is generally like his mother.

Sound Sayings.

I know no such thing as genius; genius is nothing but diligence and labor.

No woman is educated who is not equal to the successful management of a family.

The whole of human virtue may be reduced to speaking truth always and doing good to others.

The ignorant man has no greater foe than his own ignorance, for it destroyeth where it liveth.

Many people take so care of their money till they have come nearly to the end of it, and others do the same with their time.

To quarrel with a superior is injurious; with an equal is doubtful, with an inferior, sordid and base; with any full of unquietness.

The administration of government, like a guardianship, ought to be directed to the good of those who confer, and to those who receive the trust.—[Ex.

How He Got In.

A good story of the Viennese carnival is current in the Austrian capital. At a ball given by the Viennese Choral Society, which is always sure to be so thronged that it is the work of hours to reach the entrance, a member of a well known financial house hit on an original but successful mode of conveyance. He arranged with four bearers to carry him through the crowd on a hospital stretcher. Of course the crowd made way, and great was their astonishment when he threw off the covering and jumped out alive and hearty.

True charity is the scope of all God's commandments.

The Uses of Persistence.

From the Boston Gazette.

"Persistence is also a good quality for a lawyer to have sometimes," continued my friend. "A good many years ago I was trying an important jury case in this city. One morning, during the progress of the trial, the crier had made his usual announcement, concluding with 'all persons having business with this court may now draw near, and they shall be heard,' when a young drawling country gawk of a lawyer who had a case jumped up and said: 'May it please your honor, I wish to make a motion that the case of So-and-so go by default."

"But,' responded the judge, 'there is another trial now in progress; present your claims at the proper time and you shall be heard. Proceed with your case Mr.——'turning to me.

The young lawyer sat down. In a few minutes, as soon as I stopped to take breath, he jumped up again and said:

"My it please your honor, I wish to make a motion——'

"Sir," interrupted the judge, "there is a trial going on here, and we cannot afford to interrupt it for you. Sit down."

Again he resumed his seat. In a few minutes he jumped up again. "I wish to make a motion, your honor."

The judge was fairly broiling over by this time. "Sit down," he thundered. The seat was again meekly resumed.

Well, the trial went on for an hour without interruption. When I stopped to take minute's rest at the end of this time, I heard the same drawling voice commence: "May it please your honor—"

"Sir, your motion is granted," said his honor, somewhat fiercely. "Mr. ——" (turning to me) "go on with your case."

Improvements in the White House.

"Preparing for a new president" is the way a White House attache described the various operations in progress in the grounds, corridors and halls of the Executive Mansion to a reporter who inquired about them today.

The painting of the railings and gateways, the substitution of new lamps for old ones over the entrances and the sandpapering and securing of the walls of the mansion are about all that is going on outside.

"These doorways," said a veteran Washingtonian, who was hovering around this morning and seemed to know all about it, "have been painted for every administration, but have never been scraped and burned before as they are being now. Coat after coat of paint is here, representing every administration since the house was built." Pausing to watch the workmen scraping he resumed in a philosophic and meditative way:

"Why, if they'd a kep' on paintin' 'em, coat after coat, they would a filled up the hull doorway. Look a-here, they got a inch deep o' paint on'em now, and there's the maple grainin' that they had way back in '34, an' the imitation walnut befo' that, an' ye can see the paintin' back for eighty years. Back to the first paint they ever put on, the white paintin's befo' my day."

Wonderful Jewels.

The crown of England is believed to be the finest piece of regalia in the world. The lower part of the band is a row of 129 pearls, the upper part of 112; between them, in front, is a large sapphire; behind is a smaller sapphire, with six others and eight emeralds. Between the two great sapphires are ornaments containing 286 diamonds. Above the band are eight sapphires, surmounted by eight diamonds and eight festoons, containing 160 diamonds. In the front of the crown is the ruby given to the Black Prince by Pedro, King of Castile. This is set in a Maltese cross, and forming the cross are seventy-five large diamonds. Three other crosses are round the upper part of the crown, containing altogether 386 diamonds. Between the four crosses are four ornaments with four rubies in their centres, and containing respectively 84, 86, 85 and 87 diamonds. From the Maltese crosses rise four arches composed of oak leaves and acorns, the leaves containing 728 diamonds. The 32 acorns are each of a single pearl, and are set in cups made of 54 diamonds. Above the arches stands the mound, containing 548 diamonds, and above the mound is the cross, containing a very large sapphire, four very large and 108 smaller diamonds. The value of the whole is variously estimated, but is commonly believed to be about $1,500,000.

A Blaine Man's Feeling.

To the Editor of "The Press."

SIR: As an Englishman, as a non-voter, and as an unbiased individual, I would say that should the official count eventually place the Presidency beyond the reach of Mr. Blaine, his defeat would serve as an everlasting disgrace to the American nation. If a man who, mentally, stands head and shoulders above his opponent, is not elected, it will be an everlasting reflection upon the intelligence of the people. His brilliant qualities, together with his strong personality, has excited the envy and jealousy of many of his own party, and that envy and jealousy has developed into hostility at the polls. The fact is, James G. Blaine is too fine a man and too great a statesman to be appreciated in this country. EARNEST ISITT.

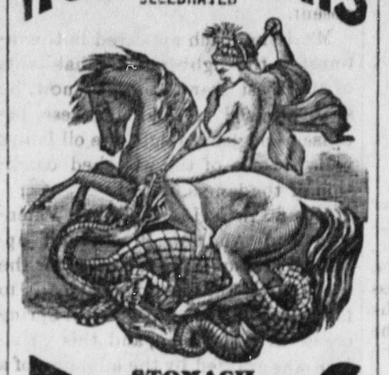
HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED



STOMACH BITTERS

Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is a fine blood depurent, a rational cathartic, and a superb anti-bilious specific. It rallies the failing energies of the debilitated, and checks premature decay. Fever and ague, bilious remittent, dyspepsia and bowel complaints are among the evils which it entirely removes. In tropical countries, where the liver and bowels are organs most unfavorably affected by the combined influence of climate, diet and water, it is a very necessary safeguard.

For sale by all druggists and dealers generally.

In the Pilot House.

"Yes, sir; this kind of work obliges a man to keep sober as a judge. Of all men in the world steamboat pilots and railroad engineers should let liquor alone. For on their clearness of sight and coolness of head depends the safety of life and property."

Keeping his hand on the wheel as he said this, Mr. A. Brockman, of No. 29½ Silver street, Chicago, added: "Of course, some of 'em drink; but the sober ones have the best positions and the best pay. Yes, the work and exposure sometimes tells on us; but for my part, I find PARKER'S TONIC to be all the invigorant I need. I've got a bottle aboard here now; never go on a trip without it. When I haven't any appetite, or am in any way out of sorts, it sets me up in no time. If drinking men would use the Tonic, it would help 'em to break off. (No, that ain't a light house; it's a star, low down near the water.) As I was saying, the Tonic is new life bottled up. You see that flag-staff? Well, with a bottle of PARKER'S TONIC in the locker I can keep malaria as far from me as that, all the time. My wife has used it for three years for summer complaints and colic, and as an invigorant, when she's tired out from overwork, she says the Tonic is a daisy. Good-bye! Don't break your neck going below."

This preparation, which has been known as PARKER'S GINGER TONIC, will hereafter be advertised and sold simply under the name of PARKER'S TONIC. As unprincipled dealers are constantly deceiving their customers by substituting inferior articles under the name of ginger, and as ginger is really an unimportant ingredient, we drop the misleading word.

There is no change, however, in the preparation, itself, and all bottles remaining in the hands of dealers, wrapped under the name of PARKER'S GINGER TONIC contain the genuine medicine if the fac simile signature of HISCOX & Co. is at the bottom of the outside wrapper.

Whistled away Her Deafness.

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—Last Sunday in this city, a quiet but peculiar wedding occurred, the facts of which have just been made known. The contracting parties were Hugh Blackburn, of Yonkers, N. Y., weight 219 pounds, and Miss Olga Johnson, height six feet three inches, weight, 237 pounds. The bridegroom was born deaf and dumb, but subsequently recovered hearing and speech. The bride was a deaf mute at the time of her marriage, and had been insane from the result of typhoid fever, but recovered. The groom has acquired a marvelous facility in whistling, and is able to execute difficult classical music with rare delicacy and finish.

After the wedding he was whistling for the edification of assembled friends when suddenly the bride's eyes began to dance and she grew frantic, dancing about the room, embracing the groom and relatives. She remained in an excited state and was kept under the influence of of opiates for two days, her friends and physicians supposing her reason to be dethroned. When she became calm, however, she explained that her hearing had been restored while her husband was whistling. All their friends look upon it as a miracle and rejoice accordingly. The now happy pair will soon return to Yonkers.

A New Oil Gusher.

BRADFORD, Nov. 13.—Until this afternoon it was supposed that the Fisher Well, No. 3, in Thron Creek district, in Butler county, was dry or nearly so. After a sixty-quarter torpedo had been exploded within its bowels the well surprised all by an enormous flow of oil. The production for the first hour was estimated at three hundred barrels. Since then the well has been flowing steadily through nine lead pipes. At seven o'clock to-night the well gauged two hundred and ninety-six barrels per hour. Her production for the first day will be about six thousand barrels A large well was not anticipated and news caused a disastrous break in the oil market. There were no failures in Bradford. The Armstrong, recently the largest in the world, is doing one hundred and fifty barrels per hour. The Fisher, No. 3, now takes its place as the largest well on earth.

A Timely Premonition.

ERIE, Pa., Nov. 14.—A day or so since Henry Watson, of Mill village, this county, was seized with a premonition that his services were necessary at a certain point on French Creek near by. The influence was so strong that he was impelled as if by a magic charm to seek the spot, and when within a short distance of it cries for help reached his ears. In the creek he found George Dowler and his wife. Dowler had tried to ford the creek, and missing the way was submerged. He was holding onto the horse while the swiftly-running current was carrying his wife to her death. Securing a boat, Watson rescued the unfortunate woman as she was sinking. The affair is all the talk and wonder of the neighborhood, and, but for the timely arrival of Watson Mrs. Dowler would have drowned.

Safe Robbery.

BRYAN, Tex., Nov. 16.—Between 2 and 3 o'clock this morning the office of the Texas Express Company at this place was entered and the safe robbed of $10,850. The thieves were evidently well posted, as both the door of the office and safe were opened with duplicate keys. It was also evident the thieves were aware of the receipt of the money by the late train, and the fact that it would not be delivered till banking hours. Ten thousand dollars of the money was consigned to Clark, Bryan & Howell, bankers, and the remainder to various parties. The finding of a knife bearing the initials of a young Spaniard named Barrett, led to his immediate arrest. Detectives are on the trial of others supposed to be implicated.

A Woman Killed by a Bull.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 16.—A special from Elkton, Md., says Mrs. Michael Hartnett, wife of a well-to-do farmer who lives a few miles from this town, was gored to death by an enraged bull early this morning. Mrs. Hartnett went out to milk her cows and feed her turkeys, both being in the same enclosure. When the bull attacked her she was facing him, trying to drive him back by swinging her bucket. His horn struck her in the stomach and inflicted a terrible wound. She lived only about a half hour afterwards.

The Burning Mines.

SHAMOKIN, Nov. 16.—The burning chamber in the Bear Valley shaft was tapped to-day with a bore hole sunk from the surface. Heat, blackdamp and smoke issued from the hole in large volumns. Water and culm will be run through this and several other like holes. The fire at the Buck Ridge slope looks much more favorable, and, from present indications, both fires will be extinguished soon.

To be Serenaded.

AUGUSTA, Nov. 17.—Mr. Blaine will be tendered a serenade to-morrow evening by the Republicans of this city.

Bishop Rulison.

READING, Nov. 14.—A fitting reception and introduction was given the Right Rev. J. N. Rulison, D. D., the newly consecrated assistant bishop of the Central Pennsylvania diocese of the Episcopal Church, in Christ Cathedral, this city, this afternoon. The Cathedral was crowded by the leading clergymen of the diocese. After the hymn, "Blest be the Tie that Binds," had been sung Bishop Howe made a brief address, introducing Bishop Rulison. Said Mr. Howe: "We have heard of his wisdom, ability and geniality of character. He has made a sacrifice in coming here, leaving so beautiful a church in Cleveland. Let us assemble to give him a greeting that he may not only know the clergy in detail, but in person. It is but fitting that we celebrate this with communion service as a feast of joy and thanksgiving."

Bishop Rulison was then introduced. He thanked Bishop Howe for assembling the clergy in his behalf and for the kindly thoughts expressed. He said the call was entirely unexpected, and that he was sitting in a hotel in Europe, when a cable message was handed him bearing the first news. He accepted it as the voice of God.

The ante communion was then partaken of by all present, after which the assembled clergy and laity were individually presented to the new Bishop. At the conclusion of the services the clergy and others paraded in a body to the residence of Bishop Howe, on Centre Avenue, where a banquet and reception followed. Bishop Rulison has not yet determined where he will make his permanent home. Wilkes-Barre, Scranton and Williamsport are mentioned.

A Romantic Marriage.

ALTOONA, Pa., Nov. 14.—Miss Ada Hudson, of this city, and Mr. H. Hemler, of Leadville, Col. were married at the latter place on Tuesday, Nov. 4, 1884, by Rev. Father Ponsard, pastor of the Leadville Catholic church. The young couple had been engaged for some time, but the young lady's parents opposed their union. Mr. Hemler went to Leadville, Col., some time ago, and recently, at his request, Miss Hudson left her home to join him. He had procured the necessary license, and had had the banns published the required number of times, and on the day of Miss Hudson's arrival in Leadville, she was married to the man of her choice.

Cholera.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—The terrible ravages of the cholera in Paris have again aroused the National Board of Health, which body took such prompt precautions against the introduction of the plague into America immediately after its appearance at Marseilles. It now issues a circular to the Governors of every State of the Union, directing their attention to the rapid westward progress of the contagion and requesting them to call the attention of their respective Legislatures to the danger of its introduction into this country and ask them to make provision for the co-operation of State and local Boards of Health to take measures to prevent the spread of the disease in case of its appearance.

A Track-Walker Killed.

ALLENTOWN, Pa, Nov. 13.—At an early hour this morning, when Lehigh Valley shifting engine No. 30 arrived at Slatington, the engineer found a hat in the tank of the engine and blood on the pilot. Surmising that an accident had happened the engineer of the next coal train going up was told to be on the look-out. A few miles up the road the mangled body of Charles Brinkman, a track-walker, was found. The skull was crushed and the body terribly mutilated. Brinkman had been in the company's employ many years and during his service on the road walked about forty-eight thousand miles. He was fifty-five years of age and leaves a wife.

A Victory for the Pennsylvania.

PITTSBURG, Nov. 13.—The Supreme Court to day filed an opinion granting the application of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company and the Pennsylvania Company for an injunction to restrain the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago Railway Company from seizing its line, now leased by the Pennsylvania Company, under a claim of forfeiture, in consequence of the latter's retaining $50,000 rent now due and other rent as it occurs This injunction will remain in force until it is determined judicially whether or not the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago Road will issue $1,345,000 special guaranteed stock to the Pennsylvania Company.

Casualties at a Celebration.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 14.—During the democratic celebration at Wellington, Kane county, last night, Mrs. John Schran was struck in the eye by a sky rocket and instantly killed. Another rocket went driving into the office of the Phillips house, striking the night clerk in the mouth and coming out behind his ear. His condition is precarious. W. H. Hood, of Pittsburg, Pa., a guest of the hotel, was also seriously wounded in the face.

A Fatal Misstep.

GREENSBURG, Pa., Nov. 14.—A probably fatal shooting accident occurred yesterday in Bell township. John Lewis and a young lady acquaintance, whose name could not be learned, were out hunting. The young lady, while carrying a gun fell, discharging the weapon, part of the load tearing one of her hands nearly off, and the balance entering her eye and lodging near the temple.

Terse Teegrams.

LONDON, Nov. 14.—Right Honorable George J. Shaw Lefevere has been appointed to succeed the late Henry Fawcett as postmaster general.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Nov. 14.—William A. Duncan, who was just re-elected to congress from the Ninteenth district, died at his residence this morning. His death was due to consumption.

GOLDSBORO, N. C., Nov. 16.—Fire to-day destroyed twenty-five leading business houses in this city, including the extensive machine shops of W. F. Kernagay & Co., the Messenger printing office and building, together with several large stocks of merchandise and a quantity of cotton.

SALEM, Mass., Nov. 14.—A fire this morning in Kingupon's glass works, at Peabody, destroyed the entire works, except a portion of the boiler shed and two wings and the chemical shed. One hundred and twenty five hands are thrown out of employment. The loss is $90,000; insurance, $75,000.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—The failures for the last seven days, reported to R. G. Dunn & Co., were as follows: United States, 211; Canada, 25. Total, 236; increase, 20, as compared with last week, when the total was 216. More than the total of failures occurred in the western and southern states.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 16.—To-day the second solemn session of the Catholic plenary council was held at the cathedral in this city. There being no procession on the streets, as on the opening day, there was a marked decrease in the number of spectators as compared with that which gathered in the immediate neighborhood on that occasion

Official Figures.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—In spite of the fact that in the canvass yesterday gains of a hundred or more were reported for Blaine over the Associated Press figures of the morning after the election, there is no doubt in New York to-night that Grover Cleveland has carried the state and is elected president. The Tribune itself concedes the fact, and this morning announced the election of Cleveland. The Tribune's figures give Cleveland's plurality in the city at 43,064, and in the whole state at 1,076. The figures were made upon the heads of the electoral tickets, however, and it is know that Oswald Ottendorfer, the editor of the Staats Zeitung, who heads the democratic electoral ticket, runs behind his colleagues about 100 to 162 votes These figures also give 30 votes in Kings county to Blaine which are still in controversy.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 17.—The state board of canvassers will meet at the capital this week, Wednesday. Official returns have been received from only about forty of the sixty counties in the state and the board will probably take a recess for a day in order to allow further returns to be received before proceeding with the canvass. If all returns are in in time the result of the state may be officially declared Wednesday. No protests have been filed.

Competition with Southern Iron.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 15.—The influx of Southern-made iron into Philadelphia shows no prospect of abatement. Information received yesterday is to the effect that 10,000 tons will be received before January 1. Reports from New York and Boston are to the effect that this class of iron is coming into those markets to a dangerous extent. It is understood that the iron manufacturers in this State are contemplating a numerously signed petition to the transportation companies for lower rates of freight as a means of protection against these outside influences.

An Incendiary Fire.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 16.—An incendiary fire at Brunswick early this morning, originating in Freekunder & Co.'s warehouse, destroyed a portion of two whole blocks and the whole of two others. Loss, $200,000; insurance, $58,500. Many families were burned out. A negro named Steve Wright was burned while trying to save property. Forty buildings were burned. Negroes are suspected of having started the fire. They almost all refused to lend any aid in fighting the fire or saving goods.

Church Anniversary.

CARLISLE, Pa., Nov. 16.—The one hundreth and fiftieth anniversary of the Silver Spring Presbyterian church, ten miles from here, was celebrated to-day. The exercises included a special historical sermon by the pastor, Rev. T. J. Ferguson. The church is the oldest in the Cumberland Valley, and the first sermon preached west of the Susquehanna was preached within the bounds of its congregation, in November, 1734, by Rev. Alexander Craighead.

Children Start a Bonfire.

CHICAGO, Nov. 16.—A number of young children started a bonfire to-night and rolled into it a barrel containing rosin and turpentine. The barrel exploded with terrific force very seriously burning and injuring six children, five of whom are not expected to survive. Names and ages of the seriously injured are Adam Poole, 10 years; Eddie Burke 10 years, and Maggie Burke, 5 years. The injured were all children of poor people.

He Wants a Cabinet Position Probably.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 17.—Joseph E. McDonald has written a card, which is published to-day, in answer to friends in various portions of Indiana, urging him to stand for the United States senatorship. He positively declines to have his name used in that connection.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL NEWS

Notes About the Borough Council.

The council met on Monday evening.

Mr. L. L. Brown was elected chairman in place of Mr. Crider, who was absent.

Mr. Lukenbach appeared in the interest of the light-loving inhabitants of the West ward, who are now, he said, plunged in total darkness, because of neglect to light the oil lamps and because of the wretched condition of the lamps.

Messrs. E. C. Humes, Robert Valentine and Andrew Brockerhoff appeared to request permission for the Gas and Steam Heating Company to lay steam heating pipes across Spring creek at the bridge, and this privilege was granted by the adoption of a resolution to that effect.

C. M. Bower, Esq., appeared on behalf of the commissioners to ask for reduction of water taxes on the public buildings. This application and similar applications from Mr. Lewin and Rich. Morgan, were, on motion, laid on the table.

A communication from the W. C. T. U. requested the council to accept the gift of the public fountain, subject only to the condition that that organization shall be consulted if its location shall be changed. The gift was accepted,

The Water committee reported pipe laid on Bishop street and in various other places.

Street committee reported a few repairs which had been attended to and the Chairman, Mr. Tate, recommended that the Edison Electric Illuminating Company be allowed to place a light near Crider's lumber office and another near Duncan's foundry, the borough not to pay the expense of wiring and the cost of maintaining them not to exceed the cost of gas lamps.

The Market Committee is rolling in wealth, reporting $37.20 receipts from September 16 to November 17.

The Street committee was instructed to have a boardwalk laid from the R. R. station to the car shops.

A motion was adopted that the Gas Company and the Edison Illuminating Company be solicited for bids to light the borough streets, from dark until 12 o'clock at night, for one year beginning with the 1st of January, 1885, the bids to be received by the council at its next meeting.

—A fire is a comparatively rare occurrence in Bellefonte, but what might have proved a very serious conflagration occurred about 2 o'clock Tuesday morning. It was doubtless the work of an incendiary as the flames started over the flight of stairs leading from the second to the third story of the Bush Arcade building. The place where the fire started is never used and is the last place in the building where accidental fire could have had its origin. Although the flames did little damage, several of the occupants of the building were almost swamped by water. The flames were battled for about two hours because of the almost inaccessible place where they started and from the fact that perhaps not more than two dozen people came to the rescue. Some of the occupants who have not had any insurance heretofore made haste Tuesday morning to take out policies.

—The people of Scotia and vicinity have been greatly shocked during the past week by three deaths almost in one family, one following the other very closely, and the last two coming so near together that one funeral service sufficed for both and both were laid in one grave. To the death of John Hicks reference has already been made. He was buried on Tuesday, Nov. 11. On Thursday, Nov. 13, Mrs. Betsey Harden, an aunt of John Hicks, expired, her death being caused by the effects of a fall down stairs, the accident occurring only a short time ago. On the same day the death of Mrs. Abram Hicks, John Hicks's mother, occurred. The funeral services over the remains of these ladies took place on Friday and the interment was made in the manner above stated, in one freshly-dug grave.

—Mr. John Moore was among the unfortunates Friday night. He had purchased a quantity of red light to burn when the parade passed his establishment. A party of Penns Valley individuals with torches marched along the street to take their position in the parade when somebody told Mr. M. that the procession was passing and the colored light at once went up in a beautiful blaze. When the real parade passed a half hour later there was a conspicuous absence of any of this bright flame.

—Miss Caroline Gobble a lady aged about 68 years, died on Monday, the 10th, at her home in Millheim. The funeral took place on Wednesday, the 12th, the interment being in the Reformed cemetery at Aaronsburg.

Wedding Bells at Boalsburg.

On Thursday, November 13, there assembled at the residence of Mr. Joel Johnson in Boalsburg a company of about forty relatives and friends to witness what was to at least two people an event of great importance. The parties chiefly interested in the ceremony about to occur were Miss Alice E., a daughter of Mr. Joel Johnson, and Mr. Samuel J. Musser, of Pine Grove Mills. Among the group were Rev. W. R. Whitney, of Stormstown, and Rev. Mr. Elliot, and an uninterested observer might easily conclude that the event about to occur was a wedding. This conclusion was changed into absolute certainty when at one o'clock the two principals were ushered into the parlor by Messrs. John E. Musser and Milton R. Johnson. Rev. Mr. Whitney performed a short and appropriate ceremony, Rev. Elliott assisting. All present then extended hearty congratulations and the buzz of animated conversation continued until the company were bidden to partake of a dinner prepared with such bounteous abundance and choice quality as few can equal and in all of which the skill of Mrs. Johnson and her daughters was apparent. After ample justice was done to this very important part of the eventful occasion the remainder of the day was spent socially in conversation and music.

Mr. and Mrs. Musser begin their married life in a way which is worthy of emulation and which indicates years of prosperity and happiness. They are well mated. He is a pleasant, affable and industrious young man and she is a cultivated and worthy young lady. They will spend a few days among friends in Altoona after which they will take up their abode in Bellefonte, he resuming the actual duties of life with his uncle Mr. B. F. Stover, proprietor of the meat market. Mrs. Musser will reside with her sister, Mrs. S. A. Stover, until Spring, at which time the happy couple expect to begin housekeeping.

They were well remembered by their friends in the gift of numerous valuable presents. The DAILY NEWS begs to join with all their friends in those congratulations which are suitable to the time and occasion.

—The beautiful town of Patterson located across the river from Mifflin town, Pa., was visited by a disastrous fire between 2 and 3 o'clock Tuesday morning. The fire started in a bakery and communicated to some of the elegant private residences of the town, destroying eleven of them, seventeen buildings becoming a prey of the flames. Among the buildings were several occupied by business firms and one by the post-office. The residence owned and occupied by Mr. North, father-in-law of Mr. F. W. Crider, of this place, was the most beautiful and costly in the county and it was destroyed with its entire contents. Mr. and Mrs. North have been the guests of their daughter here since Friday, the 14th, and they received the news of their loss Tuesday morning with feelings of considerable consternation. Their house was thoroughly and elegantly furnished and the loss will reach many thousands of dollars.

—Mr. Frederick C. Wootton, late Assistant Road Foreman of Engines on the Pittsburg division under J. K. Russell, died at his home in Reading on Sunday. While engaged in the performance of his duties at Derry he was taken suddenly ill several months ago, which resulted in a break-down of his constitution, and he never rallied. He was by nature a gentleman, and his education and training qualified him to fill a high place in railroad business had he lived. In this city, where he was well known, he was universally popular, and his more intimate friends will learn of his death with sincere sorrow. The deceased was only 28 years of age. He was a son of John E. Wootton, General Manager of the Reading Railroad. A number of his friends in this city will attend the funeral, which will take place at Reading at 2 o'clock on Thursday afternoon.—Altoona Times.

—The Democrats in this vicinity are exceedingly impudent since Cleveland's election. We know of one Democrat who turned a colored man from his employ because said colored man voted for Furst, and a colored man of this borough was knocked down and injured on Saturday evening because he hurrahed for Blaine. The assaulter was sued today and we hope he will be punished

—Mr. A. H. Best, a prominent lumber merchant of Lock Haven, dropped dead suddenly at his home in that place last Monday. He had not been feeling well for several days, but nothing serious was thought to be the matter with him. The funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon. Interment at Salona cemetery.

—The fifteenth anniversary of the Y. M. C. A. on Sunday evening was a union service in the Presbyterian church in which all the Protestant churches of Bellefonte united. The ministers of the town occupied seats in the pulpit. The auditorium of the church was densely packed. The choir was composed of about a dozen young men and rendered selections from Moody and Sankey's hymns. Rev. S. E. Furst read a few passages from the Bible and Rev. M. K. Foster made the opening prayer, Rev. J. F. Delong presiding. Rev. Mr. Furst read the annual address of the retiring President, Dr. Rhone. The reports were given in the following order: Devotional Committee, James Irvin Reception Committee, prepared by E. Garman, chairman, and read by G. Washington Rees; Library Committee, by George Potter; Lecture Committee, by Mr. S. Zellers; Treasurer's report, by the treasurer, J. W. Gephart, Esq.; General Secretary's report, by Wilmer Crow; Finance Com., by General James A. Beaver. An offering was lifted after which the meeting was closed with the benediction by Rev. Woodcock. The occasion was a pleasant and profitable one.

—The offerings on Sunday evening on the occasion of the Y. M. C. A. anniversary amounted to $26.28.

—Two gentlemen who vouch for what they say assert that the total number of men in the parade on Friday evening was less than 400, not including the brass bands. If that is so, our estimate elsewhere is too large.

—See a woman in another column, near Speer's Vineyards picking grapes from which Speer's Port Grape Wine is made, that is so highly esteemed by the medical profession, for the use of invalids, weakly persons and the aged. Sold by druggists. 16 30 1y

—A wedding of some importance in Lock Haven on Wednesday was that of Mr. Ernest Aldrich to Miss Dollie, only daughter of Mr. Isaac Shaffer, a wealthy and highly respected citizen of that place.

—Dr. L. U. Beach, the Altoona wife murderer, has been sentenced to be hanged on the 15th of January. He belongs to a family about all the other members of which are of unsound mind, and he confidently expected to escape capital punishment on the plea of insanity; but, fortunately, the jury concluded that the Doctor's insanity is of that kind which renders it necessary to cut short his temporal existence.

The First Keen Twinge,

As the season advances, the pains and aches by which rheumatism makes itself known, are experienced after every exposure. It is not claimed that Hood's Sarsaparilla is a specific for rheumatism—we doubt if there is, or can be, such a remedy. But the thousands benefited by Hood's Sarsaparilla, warrant us in urging others who suffer from rheumatism to take it before the first keen twinge.

Village Improvements.

MR. EDITOR. As I came down the hill this morning, I stopped in front of the new residence now being erected by Major Reynolds. Several persons were standing at the corner and we all fell to admiring the building, its design, its material, the workmanship and the tone of elegance and permanence which pervades the the whole structure. As I continued my way up street I began to philosophize after this fashion. The man who builds for himself a handsome residence is a public benefactor. This is especially true when it is built in a public place. This will appear very evident from several considerations. First, he contributes to the enjoyment of his neighbors. I have as much satisfaction and enjoyment in studying the outside of the Major's new residence as he has and perhaps more, for I see more of it than he does. What I enjoy every person in town can enjoy and that without investing one dollar. It is no small pleasure to take in every day by the aid of sense and taste so much satisfaction as the study of this tasteful bit of architecture affords. Second, he helps to form the taste and improve the architecture of the town. There will be marked improvement in our buildings in the future in Bellefonte because of the erection of two or three new examples of modern architecture within the past year. The effect of the building of the first of the specimens of fine church architecture which we have in Bellefonte was commented upon at the dedication of the new chapel of the Presbyterian church last Sunday by Dr. Yoemans. It is reasonable to suppose that a similar effort will follow the erection of fine specimens of architecture for private dwellings. We are unconsciously influenced by our surroundings without knowing exactly how. Men who build in the future in Bellefonte will to a greater or less degree be controlled by the taste and liberality of those who have preceded them in the erection of their houses. Third, it contributes to the reputation of the town abroad. Strangers who visit Bellefonte will carry away pleasant impressions of the town because of the taste displayed in the exterior of our houses even if they do not see the inside of one of them. Our people go abroad mainly for what they can see of architecture and art, so every bit of beautiful architecture added to our town makes it the more desirable for residence and the more attractive to strangers. Other considerations occur to me, such as giving employment to labor, enhancing the value of real estate, &c., but I cannot pursue them now, lest I weary you and your readers. I have a number of suggestions in regard to village improvement which I would like to present as I have time and opportunity. My present purpose, however, is served by thanking Major Reynolds for what he has done for the town and for my enjoyment by the erection of his new residence. I hope that the fencing and paving will be in keeping with the house so as to teach us some needed lessons on this subject. BETA.

Briefs from Baileyville.

BAILEYVILLE, NOV. 13, 1884.

MR. EDITOR: Affairs in this place have not been very lively this week.

Mr. Wm. Ewing, son of our enterprising merchant, A. G. Ewing, is visiting in town, accompanied by his family. Mr. Ewing has a very fine store in Mount Union where he carries on quite an extensive business.

The people of Baileyville have organized a literary society which meets in the Baileyville school house. The first meeting on Thursday evening, Nov. 6, was well attended. I hope and believe it will be successful.

The voters in this section gave their full strength to Blaine and Logan and regret to learn that the vote is so close. They hope the next President will be Blaine. The defeat of John G. Love, Esq., is also provoking. There are many expressions of regret at Henry Campbell's defeat for commissioner, as it is generally thought that he would make an excellent officer.

A party of twelve ladies and gentlemen of this vicinity passed a merry time on Friday evening, the 7th, at the home of D. M. Clemson, at Scotia. Oysters, cake, etc., were served for refreshments.

Deer and wild turkeys seem to be plenty this fall.

Mr. Joe Glass, teacher of the Graysville school, shot six wild turkeys, and William Powley, of Rock Spring, beat this score by shooting seven. Squirrels are unusually scarce in this vicinity. S. G.

Crazy Democrats Near Jacksonville.

One of the most senseless tricks ever imposed upon a helping community, writes a correspondent, was planned and executed by a few persons below Jacksonville one evening last week. A bright light was seen on the hill, in the immediate vicinity of Ben. Vonada's house, by the people of Jacksonville and vicinity, and while wandering what it meant, the dinner bells at George Hoy's and Ben. Vonada's began to ring an alarm of fire. Directly, a horseman came riding into town, at full speed, crying out "Fire! Fire! Benj. Vonada's house is on fire." More than fifty men went to aid them—some on foot, others horseback. When reaching the place they found that they had been badly imposed upon, only a large rail pile had been fired and the persons who did it were standing near laughing at the good will of their neighbors. They called it a Democratic bon-fire; but the public does not have a very elevated opinion of that sort of Democracy.

WINDLESS RAIN.

BY PAUL H. HAYNE.

The rain, the desolate rain!
Ceaseless and solemn and chill
How it drips on the misty pane,
How it drenches the darkened sill!
O scene of sorrow and dearth!
I would that the winds, awaking
To a fierce and gusty birth,
Might vary this dull refrain
Of rain, the desolate rain.
For the heart of the heavens seems breaking
In tears o'er the fallen earth,
And again, again, again,
We list to the somber strain—
The faint, cold monotone,
Whose soul is a mystic moan
Of the rain, the mournful rain,
The soft, despairing rain.
The rain, the murmuring rain!
Weary, pulseless, slow;
'Tis the rythm of settled sorrow,
The sobbing of careless woe!
And all the tragic of life,
The pathos of long ago,
Comes back on the sad refrain
Of the rain, the dreary rain;
Till the graves in my heart unclose,
And the dead who are buried ther
From a solemn and wierd repose
Awake, with eyes that glare
And voices that melt in pain
On the tide of the plaintive rain,
The yearning, homeless rain,
The long, low, whispering rain!

WHAT WILL convince you of the wonderful curative properties combined in HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA, if the remarkable cures that have been effected by its use fail to impress upon your mind this repeatedly proven fact? Thousands are using it, and all declare that it is a medicine possessing all and even more than WILL we claim for it. My friend, if you are sick or in that condition that you cannot call yourself either sick or well, go and get a bottle of HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA, and realize yourself how this medicine hits the right spot, and puts all the machinery of your body into working order. CONVINCE

LOWELL, MASS.

MESSRS. C. I. HOOD & CO.: Gentlemen—It affords me much pleasure to recommend HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA. My health has been such that for some years past I have been obliged to take a tonic of some kind in the spring, and have never found anything that hit my wants as your Sarsaparilla. It tones up my system, purifies my blood, sharpens my appetite, and seems to make me over. Respectfully yours,

J. P. THOMPSON.

One of our prominent business men said to us the other day: "In the spring my wife got all run down and could not eat anything; passing your store I saw a pile of HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA in the window, and I got a bottle. After she had been taking it a week she had a rousing appetite, and it did her everything. She took three bottles, and it was the best three dollars I ever invested."

Hood's Sarsaparilla.

SPICES.—The best cook in the land cannot cook successfully without pure, fresh spices. These we have in every variety. Well-seasoned food adds to long life and happiness.

SUGARS AND SYRUPS.—In Sugars and Syrups we have all the best brands in the market. Much of the sugar now sold is adulterated, and in an article of this kind there is great waste. We buy from reliable dealers, and handle only the genuine goods.

TEAS AND COFFEES.—No breakfast can be thoroughly enjoyed without a good cup of coffee or tea. A drink of this kind is stimulating and goes right to the spot. Our Coffees and Teas are fresh and strictly pure. The fragrant odor which escapes from the steaming pot as it comes in from the kitchen will convince you of this. We sell more coffee than any other two houses in the county. Why? Because we sell the best and the people know it.

NUTS, CONFECTIONERY, ETC.—In Nuts and Confectionery we have everything that is nice, and just what will please the young folks, and old folks as well. Our candies are all pure and wholesome; We do not handle the highly-colored, poisonous mixtures that ruin and decay the teeth. We have new Florida oranges (this fall's crop), fine Figs and Prunes, and a choice line of Canned Fruits and Preserves. Bear this in mind when preparing to Celebrate the merry holidays.

We make special mention of the above lines of goods because they are all leading articles at this season of the year. In other lines our stock is equally fresh and complete.

We buy the Best Goods and sell at the Lowest Figures.

LATEST TELEGRAPHIC NEWS

Mrs. Bishop Dead.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—News has reached this city of the death of Mrs. Bernic Panahi Bishop, the wife of Charles Reed Bishop, at her residence in Honolulu, Sandwich Islands. For years she had been afflicted with a cancer, to which her untimely end was undoubtedly due.

[Mrs. Bishop was the daughter of the highest chief in the Sandwich Islands, her maiden name being Bernice Panahi. On the death of Kamehameha V., the last of the original line of native kings, in 1872, she was offered the throne, but declined it. When King Lunalilo died, in 1874, she was again recognized as the heir to the throne, and again declined it, preferring to remain in private life. Years ago she became the wife of Charles R. Bishop, a native of New York, who went to the Sandwich Islands in 1847 and after pursuing various branches of business finally settled down as the senior partner in the banking firm of Bishop & Co. He has acquired a large fortune and his wife was the wealthiest woman on the Islands in her own right. She was a woman of wide culture, the leader of the best society in Honolulu, and her elegant, graceful and generous hospitality is remembered by all Americans of character who have visited the Islands. She had traveled extensively, both in Europe and the United States, her last visit to this country having been made in 1876. When traveling abroad she invariably registered herself as "the Hon. Lady Bishop." She was about fifty years of age.]

Powder Explosion.

TOLEDO, O., Nov. 13.—A large lot of powder stored in a shed on Delaware Creek, four miles from this city, exploded at 10 o'clock this morning. The report was heard for forty miles in every direction. The windows of houses in that quarter of the city were generally broken. At the broadway school, three miles from the scene, windows were smashed, and the scholars' slates, holding the windows up, were broken.

Several persons working in the shed were seen running and shouting. Everybody near took this as a signal of danger and fled. A terrific explosion followed, but all were far enough away to escape except an old man named Fred, who had charge of the shed. He had got some distance away, but was thrown down, and his hair was scorched by the explosion.

A spring wagon containing a man and three women, which stood in the yard a hundred yards away, was blown into a ditch, but no one was seriously injured. Fences were leveled in the vicinity and limbs blown from the trees. The ruins ignited from the explosion. Men are fighting the flames to keep the fire from reaching a large lot of petroleum stored near by.

The Count in New York.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 12.—The canvass of the counties in this state on the electoral vote proceeds slowly and with great care. About forty-five of the sixty counties, mostly republican, have reported, making but little change on an estimated plurality of about 1,000 for Cleveland. These are the counties in which it was expected there would be smooth sailing. In New York city it is reported that 1,800 Blaine ballots had been counted as irregular because the final "D" was clipped by the cutter from elector Butterfield's name. It is evident that the decisive part of the conflict will be in New York city, and that this may be prolonged. The republicans still think they have an even chance.

The total number of votes which Mr. George Bliss, as counsel for the republicans, expects to take exception to, in some form or other, now amounts to 4,000. About one-third of these, it is claimed, are defective or blank ballots, and the rest are Butler, St. John and other votes which were miscounted, excluded or otherwise added to swell the Cleveland vote. These, if counted as they should be, for Blaine, will change the 1500 Cleveland plurality to a plurality for Blaine of 2500.

A Picturesque Wedding.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—A picturesque wedding took place at Lawrence, near Far Rockaway, yesterday. The groom was Mr. Adolf Ladenburg, of Ladenburg, Thalman & Co., bankers, of this city, and the bride was Miss Nellie Stevens, a daughter of Mr. Alexander Stevens, of Lawrence. The ceremony was performed in Mr. Stevens' parlors. There was a meet of the Rockaway and the Meadowbrook hunts, and the hunters, clad in scarlet and dark olive coats and white breeches, their whips twisted in their hands, attended the ceremony; while outside on the level lawn the horses and hounds impatiently awaited their share of the day's sport. The day was nearly perfect, the air clear and invigorating, and the grounds in good condition for a run.

A Serious Fire in Evansburg.

MEADVILLE, Nov. 10.—Last evening the little village of Evansburg, at Conneaut Lake, met with quite a loss from fire. The livery stable of J. A. Davis, the residence of Robert Dennis, in which was the post office, and a barn owned by Dr. A. Johnson were entirely destroyed. The total loss will exceed $5,000, upon which there was insurance for about one-half. The store of A. A. Findlay was entered by thieves during the fire and about $50 in money, with cigars and tobacco, were taken. The origin is supposed to be incendiary.

The Plurality Reduced.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—The Republicans claim that they know of reductions already made public which will help Mr. Blaine. There are 435 in New York, sixty in Livingston, ten in Delaware and 120 in Schnectady, a total of 615, which takes away one-half of the Democratic claims even before the beginning of the official count. The Republicans also say that many other instances are known, which will not be made public till the time of the official count. They say that they are warranted in holding the claim that fraud has been committed by the discovery of a fraud in one of the districts in Albany. The fraud consisted in the abstracting of returns, an erasure with acid and the substitution of new figures, only twenty in number, so that the Democratic candidates for county treasurer and coroner should be elected instead of the Republican. The fraud is admitted by the Democrats and the guilty party will be punished.

The incident has had considerable effect throughout the State. The Republicans also claim that they are warranted in feeling more hopeful today than they have felt at any time since last Tuesday, from the fact that the Democrats are making so much noise over their claims. It is said that the Democratic leaders are not by any means sure that they are out of the woods. The governor would seem to think so, too, for he last night for the second time since Tuesday declined a proffered serenade, lest he should make a speech that might seem ridiculous afterward. An evening democratic paper of Albany declares that such a serenade and speech would have been premature.

The Meeting of the Prelates.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 10.—The Plenary Council assembled this morning at the Seminary of St. Sulpice for the transaction of business. All the members were present. A number of subjects were presented for consideration, but nothing was determined. A day or two will be required to arrange the several subjects to be considered, after which the work for which the Council was called will be prosecuted with deliberation and care.

To-day's session lasted several hours. The entire episcopacy of the United States, with a single exception, is attending the Council. The absent prelate is Bishop John Tuigg, D. D., Bishop of Pittsburg and Administrator of Allegheny, who is detained by illness. The three Canadian Bishops and Right Rev. J. Osouf, Vicar Apostolic of Northern Japan, while not taking part in the deliberations, have been assigned by courtesy the privilege of seats at all the sessions. At the Cathedral to night Right Rev. John Ireland, D. D., Bishop of St. Paul, delivered a sermon, the subject being "The Church the Support of the Government."

Senator Cameron at the White House.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—Senator Cameron, of Pennsylvania, is in the city and made a prolonged visit at the White House to-day. It is not learned whether he and the President mingled their tears while grieving over the political situation. It is said by the Senator's friends in Washington that he will certainly stand for re election and that he has a Legislature so largely Republican and with the Republicans so solid for him that there is no doubt of his success. They believe that a result of the national election will be the increased and almost perfect harmony and solidification of Republicans; that quarrels and factional jealousy will be forgotten; that all will work together earnestly to strengthen the organization for future contests, and that an early and forcible illustration of these new conditions will be the re election of Senator Cameron without serious opposition.

The Duty on Tin Plate.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—Secretary McCulloch and Assistant Secretary French gave a hearing to-day to a committee from Philadelphia representing the importers of tin plate, who complained that a uniform rate of duty on tin plate had not been imposed at New York, Philadelphia and other ports, and asked that the matter be investigated. They were informed that their request for an investigation would be complied with and if it was found that there was a difference in the rate of duty imposed at different ports steps would be taken to apply a remedy, so as to insure a uniform rate.

New York Mills Shutting Down.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 11.—Four or five of the large knitting and carpet mills in Amsterdam have either stopped or greatly reduced their operations, on account of the chances of Cleveland's election. In Cohoes the Rankin Knitting Mill, employing 300 hands, will soon suspend. J. W. Himes' mill, employing 250 persons, has shut down, and three or four others, employing between 400 and 500 hands, are working up raw material on hand, with a view to stopping or curtailing operations till the proprietors can see light ahead on the tariff question.

Mysteriously Robbed and Assaulted

TEMPLE, Ga., Nov. 10.—The schedule of the Georgia Pacific Road was disarranged last night and trains delayed until midnight. T. J. Harper, station-keeper and postmaster, was the only person who met the train. As the train moved off he was felled by a murderous blow on the head and robbed. Later he dragged himself into the office, where he made an ineffectual attempt to work the telegraph instrument, and was found unconscious at the key. He will die There is no clue to the assassin.

A Disastrous Fire at Duluth.

DULUTH, Nov. 11.—A disastrous fire in the lumber mills of this city on Sunday night, the third since August 1st., destroyed two saw mills, 20,000,000 feet of lumber, and ten dwellings. The principal losers are: Oneata Lumber Co., mill, lumber houses, etc., $60,000; Osterhout & Hughart, Lumber Co., mill, lumber, etc., $71,000; Bradey, Hanford & Co., lumber, $20,000; John McKinley Lumber Co., $10,000; H. W. Coppernall, trustee of Muskegon National Bank, lumber, $40,000. The total insurance is $169,855. The Oneata Lumber Co. had shut down and was unable to pay its hands for the last month's work, and it is supposed that some of them, out of revenge, lit the fire.

An Emigrant Train Wrecked.

NEWBURG, N. Y., Nov. 11.—At four o'clock this morning a heavy emigrant train going West on the West Shore Railroad broke in two and stopped at Cornwall Station. Owing to the trainmen neglecting to send back a danger signal a heavy freight train following dashed into the passenger train, completely wrecking most of the passenger cars. The engine of the freight train was overturned and fell into a ditch with several freight cars. No lives were lost. The emigrants saw the danger and hastened out of the cars. The down track was not obstructed.

Murder in Cincinnati.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 12.—William Williams, colored, was shot and killed at an early hour this morning on the sidewalk in front of Deter's saloon, Ninth and Plumb streets, by an unknown man who escaped. The parties had quarrelled in a saloon, and Williams had knocked his assailant down, cutting a gash in his head. The man went out to the water trough to bathe the wound, where Williams followed and fired at him, when the man returned the fire, and shot Williams through the heart.

General Harney Married.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 12.—Major General Williams S. Harney, of the United States army, aged 84, was married today at the Cathedral to Marie Steyr. The bride is 48 years old, and was formerly the General's housekeeper Harney is very wealthy, and is the oldest officer on the retired list. The pair left for New Orleans on their wedding trip. The marriage is the talk of the town, and the old campaigner received congratulations on every hand.

Desperate Masked Robbers.

MANSFIELD, Pa., Nov. 13.—Masked robbers last night at 10 o'clock entered the residence of Captain John Morrow, an aged invalid, and after binding and gagging Mr. Morrow and a lady friend named McCoy, ransacked the house and secured five hundred dollars in cash and other valuables. The ladies freed themselves this morning and gave the alarm. Both were terribly injured, and Mrs. Morrow may not recover.

Ex-President Tyler's Daughter to be Married.

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 12.—Miss Pearl Tyler, daughter of ex-President Tyler, will be married in the cathedral here next week to a gentleman who is a Catholic. The matter causes some commotion in church circles, as it is against the ordinances to permit a Protestant to wed in a Catholic church. In this case special permission was granted by the Pope, on the ground, it is stated, that the lady being a daughter of a President of the United States, occupied a position analagous to that of the privileged nobility of European countries.

English Mine Owners.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—Mr. Cleveland's supposed election to the American presidency has given great encouragement to the mine owners in the Cornwall district, who are confident from his attitude toward the tariff that he will seek to bring about a reduction of the duties upon metals imported into the United States. Managers of a number of mines that were about to be closed on account of dullness in the trade, have been ordered to continue their operations. There is a better feeling in mining circles than has been known for years.

Trains Collide in a Fog.

GEORGETOWN, Del., 10.—In the heavy fog this morning an extra train collided with the north-bound mail train between Berlin and Selbyville, Del., stations on the Delaware, Maryland and Virginia Railroad. Both engines were damaged and Engineer J. H. Russell died about three hours after the accident. Engineer L. Smith was also badly hurt, but is still living. One passenger—William Long—had his leg broken. No one else was seriously hurt.

A Dramatic Editor's Good Fortune.

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—Mr. D. Dalziel, editor of the Chicago News Letter, a very successful weekly paper, devoted principally to dramatic affairs, yesterday received a cable message acquainting him that he had fallen heir to an estate in Shropshire, England, in the midst of the coal region, valued at $100,000 annual rental. Mr. Dalziel inherits this property from his maternal aunt, recently deceased, who made him her sole heir.

The Fool-Killer Wanted.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—A man named Dougherty, from New York, while at the top of the Washington Monument on Saturday, eluded the vigilance of the watchman and climbed to the top of the mast, which projects sixteen and a half feet above the height of the capstone, and which supports a boom for lifting stone. While there he cut his name and returned to the platform where the workmen were engaged.

Terse Telegrams.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 12.—Official returns from every county give Blaine a plurality of 80,520.

MONTREAL, Nov. 12.—Diphtheria is increasing to an alarming extent and typhoid is prevailing also. The doctors attribute both epidemics to the defective city drainage.

CONCORD, Nov. 12.—Blaine's plurality in this state over Cleveland is 4,000. Majority over all 1,875. St. John received 1,573 votes, Butler 552

CINCINNATI, Nov. 12.—The official returns from the Ninth Kentucky congressional district show the election of W. H. Wadsworth, republican, by a majority of 102.

DETROIT, Mich., November 10.—Mrs. W. S. Howard, aged 50, a resident of Mill Brook, poured oil on herself and ignited it Saturday night. She died yesterday. She was mentally unbalanced.

ST. JOHNSBURY, Vt., Nov. 13.—Last night Governor St. John and C. M. Stone, editor of the St. Jonsbury Caledonian and candidate for governor on the independent ticket, were hung in effigy from a telegraph pole.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—The reduction by the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad of its rates to meet the lowest figures of other roads has put new life into the railroad war. Ten dollars and a half is the price of tickets to Chicago today by all roads except the New York Central, which asks $12, and the Pennsylvania, which asks $20.

PITTSBURG, Nov. 12.—Ormsby Phillips, one of the propreitors of the Pittsburg Dispatch, died suddenly this morning at 9 o'clock of nervous prostration. Deceased for many years was prominently connected with the iron and glass factories here. He was mayor of Allegheny city three years, and at the time of his death was president of the board of managers of the Western penitentiary.

Was Gen. Gordon Killed?

PARIS, Nov. 13.—Prime-Minister Ferry communicated dispatches to the Cabinet this morning, from which it would appear that General Gordon had been shot dead while passing from Khartoum to Berber.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—The government believes Ferry's dispatches alleging the killing of Gen. Gordon are revivals of old rumors current some days ago.

A Novel Military Idea.

MONTREAL, Nov. 11.—An idea is mooted here of forming a regiment of Franc Tireurs composed of snow-shoe clubs. It is pointed out how useful the snow-shoers might prove themselves in the event of a Winter campaign. The plan is to ask the Government to provide arms and accoutrements, the clubs furnishing their own uniforms and all other requisites.

A Nourishing Wine for Hot Weather.

Old and infirm persons need some mild tonic or gentle stimulant especially at this season. The wine made at Speer's Mount Prospect vineyards, in New Jersey, called Speer's Port Grape Wine, is used at Dresden, Vienna, and other parts of Europe, as the best wine known for benefitting the human system, and is regarded as pure, and very popular among physicians. It is especially beneficial for females and old people.—St. Louis Republican. For sale by druggists.

Suit Against a Railroad.

PITTSBURG, Nov. 12.—In the United States circuit court this morning ex-Contractor Simpson, of New York, filed a petition for attachment for contempt against the New Castle Northern railway company, alleging that the injunction granted in May term is being violated and his lien endangered by the company proceeding with the work of construction. The matter will be heard on Saturday.

No Grease for Him.

"When Greece her knees—Greece her knees—Greece her knees," stammered an embarrassed school boy, forgetting the next line of his recitation. "There is no occasion to grease anybody's knees," shouted his teacher. "Go and study your piece." Neither is there occasion to grease your hair. Parker's Hair Balsam is all the dressing you want. Restores the original gloss and color to gray or faded hair. Does not soil the linen; not a dye; good for the scalp; prevents falling out.

CATARRH.—Without assuming to write out a thesis of this universal ailment, facts warrant our saying that it seems to us that there never was a season when it was so prevalent as the present.

The above is preliminary to the following, viz.: That Messrs. Hood & Co., of Lowell, believe that the best way to treat Catarrh, and the only way to get permanent relief is through the blood. A constitutional disease requires a constitutional remedy. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a blood purifier and constitutional medicine can be relied upon, and has cured numerous cases of Catarrh in its various forms. We think this claim a reasonable one and gladly give it room in our columns.

Polygamy.

"How many wives has he?"

"Two."

"And do they live together?" queried the tourist, in astonishment.

"Yes, ma'am."

"And don't they ever quarrel?"

"Not that I know of."

"What! They actually live together in the same house and don't quarrel," exclaimed the inquisitor—"why, where is the man?" she added, in breathless haste.

"He's dead," meekly answered the little girl.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

—The Huntingdon county teachers' institute will hold its annual session in Huntingdon during the week, beginning November 24.

—Improvements in the way of a steeple, a new pulpit and furniture have just been added to the M. E. church at Aaronsburg.

—That company of railroaders who arrived in Bellefonte on Wednesday included fifty-five inspectors besides several superintendents.

—The ground has been broken for the erection of a new dwelling house on Howard street to be owned and occupied by Mrs. Hutchison.

—It is said that the "Northern lights" which are usually quite brilliant in the autumn season, are the precursors of very high winds.

—The band was at the rink on Thursday evening and a pleasing variation in the regular exercises of the evening was a May Pole dance.

—Rev. J. A. Woodcock is beginning the erection of a handsome Queen Anne cottage on Linn street. It will be an ornament to that thoroughfare.

—The plaintive music of the expiring porker is now heard in the land. This is the most conclusive evidence that the days of sausage are here again.

—The Johnstown Democrats have postponed their jubilee until Saturday, Nov. 22. They don't consider it worth while celebrating an uncertain victory.

—Major Wm. F. Reynold's handsome new stone residence on Linn street is approaching completion so rapidly as to almost resemble a finished structure.

—Hiram Goodman, a Woodward Nimrod, shot a deer the other day that weighed 128 pounds when dressed. He's not only a good man, but also a good shot.

—James O'Rourke, a professional base ball player, who was with the Buffalo club last year, will play with the New York club next season for the modest salary of $6,500.

—Judge John Smith, who gained his judicial title by his service as associate judge of Lycoming county several years ago, died in Williamsport on Monday, Nov. 10, aged 90 years.

—There is a peach tree in Lock Haven one side of which bears pink-tinted peaches, and the other bears peaches of a yellow color. The pink-tinted variety ripen several weeks in advance of the others.

—Teachers in the public schools in all parts of the State are holding their county institutes. This seems to be a decidedly unfavorable time for such gatherings, so soon after the schools have begun. The time chosen by the Centre county teachers is much better; indeed, the best that can be selected.

—Prophet De Vou says of the weather, beginning to-day: "Wednesday will enter foggy and cloudy and remarkably warm, with rain and south winds. Thursday, cloudy and showery; Friday, clear and frosty; Saturday, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday will all be smoky, foggy and warm."

—A special telegram from Hawley, in this State, says that gold has been discovered in small quantities on the Mansen farm in Panpeck township, Pike county. The farming community is in high glee over the prospect of their hitherto unproductive lands turning into an Eldorado of immense value.

—A movement is on foot, we understand, to build a hotel at Penn Cave. The Long brothers are the projectors of this enterprise, and it will be a bonanza to them. The rush of visitors to the cave is as great now as it was during the summer months and this is perhaps the best time to visit it, as the difference of temperature inside and outside the cave is less marked now than earlier in the season.

Lines from Loveville.

LOVEVILLE, Nov. 13, 1884.

Nice Autumn weather this.

Wonder who goes up Salt river.

How soon will we need the ulster and the beaver.

We hear old men predict a light fall of snow this winter.

A new picket fence is being erected around the Ross M. E. church.

Mr. John Wilson turns out quite gay in a bran new spring wagon.

A protracted meeting is now in progress at the Ross appointment, Stormstown charge.

Mr. John Hicks, of near Scotia, died Monday, the 10th inst., and was buried on Tuesday, the 11th.

Mr. Harry G. Ebbs is engaged canvassing for the book of the life of Blaine and Logan. Success to you, Harry.

The Democrats are very much elated over what they claim their great triumph. Better not "holler" too loud, boys; you may be driving a balky horse.

A squeal and they're killed! A scrape and they're clean! A few strokes and they're cut up! A little chopping and stuffing and 'tis done! Butchering, we mean.

We notice that our friend "Mac," of "Howard Humor," kind'er goes for the "pretty fair maids" for remarking upon each others wearing apparel We presume "Mac" was too much engaged in watching their "pretty faces" to criticise their dress. But don't be so hard on them, "Mac;" 'tis their nature, you know.

Rev. Bell, of Hollidaysburg, officiated in the pulpit of the M. E. church at the Ross appointment on Sunday morning last, preaching from Romans 8:18, "For I reckon that the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed in us." The sermon preached was a master effort of the reverend gentleman's. Speaking the gospel truths in a way that not only gave light to the Christians, but greatly consoled them with the thought that if trials and troubles are great the glory of the after life will more than recompense for all suffering. Rev. B. made many friends during his short sojourn at that place.

On Thursday evening, Nov. 6th, about 7 o'clock, people began to repair to the home of Mrs. Kate Ayers, widow, and each and every one carried a package of some shape and size. They continued gathering till near nine o'clock when by a survey of the crowd we numbered forty-one assembled there, while the tokens of friendship and esteem brought were numerous. On making a list of names of the donators we summed up about 75, mention of all of whom would take up too much space, else we would append the names of the entire company. We will say, however, that the articles brought comprised all manner of groceries and eatables and some clothing. Among the assemblage were Rev. G. W. Bouse and Rev. W. R. Whitney, both of whom made first-class speeches that were appropriate to the occasion. After a short social time spent together all left for their homes feeling no doubt that there is happiness in the willingness to give. WEB.

Confidence Men at Work.

It seems that there will always be people susceptible enough to be victimized by traveling sharpers. We trust no readers of the DAILY NEWS are imposed upon by these fellows, as they have been forewarned time and again, which is equivalent to being forearmed. It is almost incredible that one of the wealthiest and most intelligent citizens of Snow Shoe could be thus "taken in;" but, nevertheless, we understand that such was the case a few weeks ago, and that, too, in one of the hotels of this town. Two strangers of pleasing appearance were guests of the hotel at the same time our friend partook of the hospitality of the house. One of them met our hero (?) on the street and remarked: "Good morning, sir; you are the very man I wanted to see. Step into the hotel and see the samples of fine goods which I have to exhibit."

The Snow Shoe man accepted the invitation and was pleased with what he saw. The two eloquent strangers persuaded him to buy $275 worth of the goods, samples of which were shown him. He went to the bank for the money and placed it into the hands of the strangers. Suddenly one of these strangers had an errand up stairs to his room. He remained up stairs so long that the Snow Shoe man became concerned about him. The other stranger suggested that the Snow Shoe man should go up stairs and look for his partner. Snow Shoe went and that is the last he has seen of his money or the two strangers and no goods have yet been received. At least an hour passed before our Snow Shoe friend had the detectives on their track and they are probably now plying their vocation in other parts of this very wicked world.

Death of John W. Hicks.

EDITOR DAILY NEWS:—It becomes our sad duty to record the death of one of Scotia's esteemed citizens, who departed this life on Sunday night, Nov. 9th, at 12 o'clock. The person whose spirit the death angel conducted to its eternal home at the above time, was John W. Hicks, who was just in the prime of life, being in his 38th year. The departed leaves a father and mother, a wife and six children to mourn his death. It has been only about one month since he witnessed the death and burial of the last one of six of his children. Mr. Hicks had been confined to his bed but eight days, being stricken with that terrible and fast-consuming disease, pneumonia, and in its worst form, both lungs being equally affected, a heavy cold being contracted a short time previous, and resulting in this fatal manner. He was a dutiful son, a loving husband and a kind father. He was a man universally beloved by all who knew him, and left this vale, which lies between the cold and barren peaks of two eternities, for his eternal home beyond the heights, without a single enemy, and it was with expressions of deep regret that his many friends received the sad intelligence concerning his departure. Figuratively speaking, he was in the forenoon of life, but before the sun had apparently reached the zenith, the All Wise Ruler said to him, "It is enough, come up higher, I have a work for you to perform." It seems indeed hard, and quite difficult to understand why death, with unrelenting grasp, should take hold of one, who was so much needed and upon whom so much responsibility apparently rested; but it is not intended that weak, frail humanity should understand the workings and designs of the Creator. Those great questions and perplexing mysteries will have to remain unexplained, until we meet that One before whom all difficulties vanish like the dew drop before the morning sun. It is, indeed, quite a loss to the family and community. But what is their loss is his gain. They have many sympathizing friends in their bereavement. W. E. G.

A Wild Swede from Chicago.

When Fast Line arrived in this city last evening, says the Altoona Times of Monday, the 10th, a crazy Swede left the train and didn't get in again. His queer ways attracted attention, and at last by means of an interpreter it was discovered that several days ago he started from Chicago intending to sail for Sweden. Arriving at the city of New York his mind was affected by the election excitement there, and imagining the crowds were going to kill him, he at once bought a ticket for Colorado, and started back at once. Officers Gracy and Colyer were summoned to the depot and they proceeded to take the stranger in charge. They got him behind the bars, but it was a terrible task, for imagining that they were going to take his life he fought like a tiger, and being a large man he made things lively. The crazy man was finally secured in jail.

—General James A. Beaver, of Pennsylvania, is mentioned in Washington as a likely successor to Colonel Dudley as commissioner of pensions. Nobody knows that the President will appoint General Beaver, but pretty much everybody knows that he could find no better man for the office.—Phila. Press.

The Press, for once, is "off the track." That journal should know that General Beaver will not give up his extensive law practice for any such second-rate appointment. The programme to be carried out by President Blaine will be more appropriate. He will include in his cabinet, Roscoe Conkling as Secretary of State and Gen. Jas. A. Beaver for Secretary of War.

Excursion Tickets to Jacksonville, Fla., via Pennsylvania Railroad.

For the accommodation of travelers to the South, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company has placed on sale winter excursion tickets to Jacksonville, Florida, which will be sold from Cumberland, Md., Bedford, Pennas. Everett, Huntingdon, Tyrone, Altoona, Johnstown, Indiana and Pittsburgh to Jacksonville and return at $50, good until May 31st, 1885.

A stock of excursion tickets has also been placed on sale at the above agency for Cap May, Cape May Point, Atlantic City, and Old Point Comfort.

—The following facts taken from the report of the international committee of the Y. M. C. A. shows substantial growth: "Associations reporting, 824, increase over last year, 97; membership 108,000, increase, 13,000; association buildings, 80; increase, 7; value of buildings, $3,107,000; increase, $207,000. Total value of property, $3,956,000; increase, $488,000; number of secretaries and other agents, 388; increase, 68."

—Belva Lockwood received 18 votes in Blair county.

An Impartial Judge.

Certain journals in this vicinity which should know better have intimated that Judge A. O. Furst is politically an extreme partizan and his rulings will be influenced to some extent by his political proclivities. Now, we have the best possible authority for contradicting this contumacious assertion. That Judge Furst has always been a Republican none will deny, but surely he is more respected who has political opinions and the ability to express them than he who has no such opinions. That Mr. Furst has ever taken any part in extreme partizan measures is false, and that he is an honorable and able gentleman is sufficient to assure all who seek justice in the courts of the district that political or other opinions will be sunk and that equity will be meted out with all the exactness which humanity is capable of. Then, too, while Judge Furst is a Republican, he does not claim that he was elevated to the bench by Republicans alone. The returns show that many good and true Democrats consider him the better candidate. There is everything to augur such a judicial dispensation in this district as has seldom been known in any part of the world, and those who come into the courts have naught to fear if they are guiltless of violations of law or equity.

Obituary—Catharine E. Dillon.

DILLON.—At the residence of Marshal Lewis near Kylertown, Clearfield county, Nov. 7th, Catharine E. Dillon, widow of Geo. R. Dillon, in the 78th year of her age.

The deceased was the mother of fourteen children, of whom five only remain to mourn her loss. Some thirty or more years ago she professed faith in Christ, was buried with Christ by baptism, and united with the Baptist church, at that time holding services at Morrisdale. Funeral services were held on Sunday, at the Messiah church, conducted by the pastor, Rev. M. L. Jackson. A large congregation were present to pay the last tribute of respect to the deceased. COM.

—There is a lovely young lady in the Snow Shoe coal office. She has a matchlessly beautiful face; ripe, peachy complexion, laughing eyes, rosebud mouth, roguish dimples, a profusion of bangs and every other female grace. She weighs 165 pounds and smiles delightfully at James Irvin, Andy Cook or whoever happens to come in the office. Since she has been there an unusually large number of susceptible young gentlemen have called to leave orders for Snow Shoe bituminous coal.

—The Lock Haven Daily Democrat and one or two correspondents of that paper are working themselves into a fever of excitement about the proper name for the first day of the week. That paper and its correspondents contend that Sunday is correct while Sabbath is not. Dear Democrat, each is correct, and it depends entirely on the way the word is used. In legal phraseology Sunday is the word to use while in expressing a season of holy rest Sabbath is eminently appropriate. Turn your attention, please, to the discussion of some more important subject.

A Terrible Beat.

Mrs. Aaron Devinney sent us last Friday, a colossal beet which measures 21 inches in length, and 20 inches in circumference. Its weight is 11 pounds. This beet will be at our office for inspection until its size is beat, after which it will be-ate by us between Thanksgiving and New Year, unless it beet-taken away by the rats in the interim, which would beet-terrible indeed.—Philipsburg Ledger.

—W. F. Boring, son of Mr. Thomas A. Boring, of West Huntingdon, has applied for a patent on an improved water wheel, with detachable pockets, of which he is the inventor. Experts who have examined the invention pronounce it a model of completeness, and it is believed the new invention will supercede the style of water wheel now in general use.

—THE POST campaign in Pennsylvania was brilliant, meteoric. Result, 76,000 for Blaine.—Centre Democrat.

To what POST campaign do you refer? If the campaign waged by the Pittsburg Post was so meteoric, we confess that its brilliancy was wasted so far as the voters were concerned.

—D. H. Conrad, of West Huntingdon, has raised a beet in his garden measuring 21 inches in length, 33½ inches in circumference and weighing 21½ pounds. That beats anything we have heard of this season.

—The ancient village of Shade Gap, Huntingdon county, is to have a new and well constructed railroad completed to that place before many days. It will be part of the Vanderbilt system.

—The Y. M. C. A. of this place on Thursday received a collection of 50 books on temperance. They are the gift of Mr. William Patten, of Philadelphia, and are in grateful acknowledgement of courtesies received from Mr. Crow and the Association while Mr. and Mrs. Patten were visiting in Bellefonte during the summer. When here Mrs. Patten delivered a lecture on temperance to the ladies and her visit is remembered pleasantly by them. The books are of a very interesting character and will be valuable additions to the present collection as care was taken not to duplicate any that were in the library.

—The Altoona Democrats had a demonstration on Saturday evening. The parade was largely composed of small boys.

—If Cleveland is elected Mr. Joe Furey will receive the appointment of minister plenipotentiary to the Sandwich Islands.

—A letter in the post office is addressed: "Mrs. Lon. Coleman, Centre county, Pa." It bears the postmark of "Ore Hill."

—A Mrs. Love, who died at Scotia last week, was brought to Bellefonte and buried from the home of Mr. Downing on Bishop street.

—The third annual meeting of the Juniata Valley Editoral association will be held in the Leister house, Huntingdon, on Saturday, November 22, at 1.30 p. m.

—If everybody was as fortunate as Mr. John Ardell they could stand the calamity of Clevela d's election. A darling infant daughter appeared at his house at 2 a. m. Monday.

—The ladies of the Millheim Lutheran Mite Society are making arrangements to give a Thanksgiving supper for the purpose of replenishing the treasury of the church.

—The new Lutheran church building to be erected in Centre Hall will not be located on the site of the old one which was burned, but a more desirable site in the same vicinity has been selected.

—Bishop C. D. Foss, who resides in Minneapolis, Minn., will preside over the deliberations of the Central Pennsylvania conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, which will convene at Huntingdon on the 12th of March.

—Recent statistics on the comparative longevity of the sexes show that under 15 years there are more boys than girls but over 75 years there are more women than men, and from the ages of 90 to 100 the proportion is about three to two in favor of women.

—Daughters are very popular just now and the North ward seems to be receiving its full share. One of the handsomest infant daughters that ever developed a love for sealskin sacques, beaux and other useful articles just arrived at the home of S. D. Ray, Esq. Congratulations.

—The mill of Kreamer, Mann & Co., at Lock Haven, twelve million feet of lumber belonging to the firm, the county bridge and a large quantity of lumber belonging to Gossler & Co. and Ross & Furst were destroyed by fire at 4 o'clock Friday morning. The insurance will not cover one-half the loss.

—An enterprising individual named Eyer recently stole from A. F. Ryan, of Lock Haven, a team of draft horses, with harness and a heavy road wagon. The thief was captured in Clearfield county by officer Olewine, of Philipsburg, and lodged in the Clinton county jail, while the stolen property was returned to its owner.

—The Philadelphia Times of Monday printed a table which gives the Democratic candidate a popular majority of 88,000. The Press of the same date printed a table which gives a popular majority of 3,000 to Blaine. While these well posted newspapers differ so radically more modest country journals must wait more reliable figures.

—On Sunday morning, as per previous announcement, a congregational meeting was held in the Lutheran church, and the subject of Rev. S. E. Furst's resignation was considered. The congregation refused to accept the resignation. What action the reverend gentleman will now take we cannot say, but unite with the members of his congregation in the hope that he will withdraw his resignation.

—Recently the Bellefonte Glass Company received an order for $3000 worth of glass. About one-third of it had been manufactured and shipped to its destination the beginning of last week when notice came that, in view of the probable election of Cleveland, the remaining $2000 of the order should not be completed. The American manufacturers cannot compete with German manufacturers while wages are as high as at present and the purchasers conclude that as there is now a probability of purchasing German glass cheap it will not be prudent to supply themselves extensively with high-priced American glass. The alternative seems to be either to reduce wages or close the factories. But as the Bellefonte factory has an enviable reputation abroad it will probably be among the last to suffer in this respect.

SUNDAY SCHOOLS.

Proceedings of the Sunday-School Convention at Port Matilda on Thursday and Friday.

The 15th annual session of the Centre Co. S. S. Association opened in the Presbyterian church, Port Matilda, on Thursday, Nov. 13, 1884, at 7 p. m. Rev. S. E. Furst, President, declared the convention open and called on Rev. M. L. Cook, of Philipsburg, who read an appropriate selection from the Bible and offered an opening prayer, after which Rev. M. K. Foster, of Bellefonte, preached a most excellent and instructive sermon from Ex. 2:9. After a hymn by the choir, Rev. M. L. Cook delivered an address on "Home Instruction in its Bearing on the Sunday-School." Another hymn was sung when the convention adjourned to meet at 9 a. m. on Friday.

The second session began promptly at 9 a. m. Friday morning, Rev. Mr. Furst in the chair. The first exercise was a prayer and praise meeting. The Chair then announced the absence of Mr. Ray, the secretary, and Austin Curtin, of Roland, was elected Secretary pro tem. After the committee had succeeded in getting the names of delegates present, Rev. S. W. Baker, of Port Matilda, delivered a neat and appropriate address of welcome, which was responded to quite happily by President Furst. The delegates reported up to that time were as follows:

Christian Dale, Lutheran S. S., Boalsburg.

Geo. W. Gates, Asst. Supt. U. B. S. S., Black Oak.

Nelson Duck, U. B. S. S., Black Oak.

Rev, Wm. Prideaux, pastor and delegate of Presbyterian Sunday-schools of Unionville and Buffalo Run.

Budd Thompson and Elias Turner, Presbyterian S. S., Port Matilda.

Rev. M. L Cook, pastor, and Geo. W. Ganoe, Supt. of Presbyterian S. S., Philipsburg.

Rev. M. K. Foster, pastor, and Mrs. W. T. Twitmire, of M. E. S. S., Bellefonte, Mrs. Twitmire also representing the W. C. T. U. of Bellefonte.

Rev. John Zeigler, pastor Messiah's church and delegate Fairview S. S.

Rev. S. E. Furst, pastor, and delegate of Lutheran S. S., Bellefonte.

G. W. Miles, Supt. and delegate Bald Eagle Baptist S. S.

J. Daniel Ardry and James Ebberts, M. E. S. S. of Martha.

William Wilson and Miss Harriet Wilson, delegates, and Rev. W. R. Whitney, pastor, and delegate of M. E. S. S., Stormstown.

William Crane, supt. and delegate, and Miss Gertie McKinny, Mrs. Maggie Harshbarger and Thos. Weston, delegates, and Rev. G. W. Baker, pastor and delegate of M. E. Sunday-school, Port Matilda.

Austin Curtin, superintendent, M. L. McClintock, asst. supt., and Miss Lucy Barnhart, of M. E. S. S., Curtin.

George Ebbs, Ross M. E. S. S., Half Moon.

C. Ardell and Miss Ardell, of Julian Union S. S.

Rev. R. Crittenden, S. S. Union and delegate Presbyterian S. S., Bellefonte.

Rev. Mr. Zeigler opened the subject of "Method of Teaching," offering some valuable thoughts and was followed on the same topic by Rev. S. W. Baker. Rev. M. L. Cook took the method adopted in his Sunday-school. First inquire the object of teaching and then apply the method. Teach Christ; have the teachers meet during the week; they should interchange ideas, and discuss all the topics, taking a verse at a time; do not come together without prayer; use all the lesson helps and Bible commentaries at hand; search for passages bearing on the subject.

Mr. G. W. Ganoe followed with recommendations in regard to methods, his remarks being exceedingly appropriate.

Rev. Zeigler then said he thought the teacher had received instruction, but how about the children to be taught? He recommended home instruction as the initiatory step. Rev. Mr. Prideaux followed in a similar vein and said that parents are especially remiss in instructing their children, showing a great indifference to their spiritual welfare. As we cannot secure the co-operation of parents, the best method of teaching the children is a question difficult to answer. After more remarks by Revs. Cook and Zeigler, the topic was dropped.

Music by the choir followed, after which the topic of "S. S. Literature" was introduced, Rev. M. K. Foster delivering the opening address. He began by saying that he was opposed to extemporaneous speaking as he always found he had forgotten to say many things he wanted to say, not thinking of them until too late. He condemned the larger part of the present S. S. library books, saying that the religion they contain is of a poor quality, but would recommend especially, if they can be secured, books containing, as much as possible, sound religious doctrine. His remarks were brief but interesting. Rev. Mr. Crittenden, in a few remarks, expressed the conviction that the books now to be found in the S. S. libraries are superior to any of previous times. Rev. Zeigler, speaking on this subject, condemned certain Sunday-school papers now being sent out by publishing houses. He named particularly David Cook's Chicago Magnet, also Everybody's Magazine and Labor of Love, which, he said, are to be touched with caution. There are others which he could not then name. Rev. Prideaux agreed with Rev. Foster, and asked where are the good old books of years gone by? and deplored the almost universal use of sensational, trashy literature, gotten up to please the eye and cater to the depraved taste, and not to lead to higher and nobler aims. His remarks were eloquent. Rev. Zeigler said what he thought might possibly furnish a new topic, and that was the almost entire abolishment of the good old-fashioned custom of giving tickets. He wished them to come into use again. He condemned the use of rewards.

The following committees were then announced and requested to have their reports ready for the afternoon session:

On Resolutions—Rev. M. K. Foster, chairman, Rev. Wm. Prideaux, Geo. W. Ganoe, Miss Lucy Barnhart, Mrs. Maggie Harshberger.

On Nomination—Rev. R. Crittenden, chairman, Rev. M. L. Cook, M. L. McClintock, Budd Thompson-Christian Dale.

On Place of Meeting—Rev. G. W. Baker, Rev. John Zeigler, Thos. Weston, Miss Gertie McKinney, Mrs. W. T. Twitmire, J. Daniel Ardry, Geo. W. Gates.

The choir sung a hymn and the Rev. Mr. Baker dismissed the convention with a short prayer.

At 1.30 p. m. the session again opened with prayer by Rev. Mr. Prideaux and after the reading and adoption of the minutes, the chair, man of the committee on resolutions was called on to report. The resolutions were taken up seriatim and are as follows:

Your committee on resolutions would offer their report—

1. As a convention, we reaffirm our devotion to the Sunday-school work.

2. We would emphasize the importance of home instruction to secure the best results in the Sunday-school.

3. As to the method of teaching, we believe the object had in view should be to lead the children to Christ, and that this can best be attained by teaching devoutly from the Bible, rather than from lesson leaves, that Scripture may be compared with Scripture, that the truth may the more clearly and certainly appear.

4. Recognizing the importance of a sound and wholesome Sunday-school literature, we would recommend that great care be taken to secure for our school such papers and books, and such only as will bear the test of very close examination. In our judgment, the books and periodicals of the denominational publishing houses, the American Sunday School Union, and American Tract Society, are to be preferred to those of outside and irresponsible publishers.

5. We recommend that our Sunday schools should be made interesting by the officers and teachers showing themselves interested, and that the exercises should be made attractive with good music, and that such anniversaries should be observed as may be deemed expedient.

6. In our judgment, it is highly desirable, and we believe in almost every case possible, to keep our schools in active existence all the year around.

7. We believe in the propriety and great importance of such temperance teaching in the Sunday school as will effectually prevent our children from becoming drunkards when they become men and women.

And in this connection we would most heartily endorse the Women's Christian Temperance Union, and bid them God speed in their work.

8. As a convention, we extend our thanks to the citizens of Port Matilda for their generous hospitality; to the Presbyterians for the use of their church; and to the choir for their most excellent music.

9. We also unite in a vote of thanks to the officers of the County Association and the Executive Committee for the efficient manner in which they have performed their several duties.

Respectfully submitted.

M. K. Foster,
Wm. Prideaux,
G. W. Ganoe,
Miss Lucy Barnhart,
Mrs. Maggie Harshberger,
Committee.

The committee on place of meeting reported Philipsburg as the choice for 1885, time to be fixed by the Executive Committee. The Committee on Nominations reported the following: President, Rev. S. E. Furst; Secretary, Austin Curtin; Treasurer, Chas. F. Cook; Ex. Com., Revs. R. Crittenden, W. E. Fischer, John Zeigler, B. J. Hummel, J. P. Hughes, Messrs. D. S. Keller, Wm. Zeller, F. P. Green, H. L. Harvey, J. W. Mattern. The reports of the committees were accepted

Rev. Mr. Furst then opened the topic, "Means proper to be used in sustaining interest in the Sunday-school." He believes in Children's Day, proper exercises at Christmas time, picnics at suitable seasons, etc. Be careful that no amusements of questionable character are introduced into such picnics. Rev. Mr. Prideaux followed, suggesting that to become interested ourselves is a sure way to have interest imparted to the schools. Rev. Mr. Ganoe advocated good music and plenty of it, but deprecated the custom of allowing anyone to come into the school and talk it to death. Rev. Mr. Zeigler asked the question: Does it mean keeping interest during one session or maintaining the interest during the whole year?

The next topic, "Supplemental Lessons," was touched upon briefly by Rev. Mr. Cook. He objects to anything except the word of God in the Sunday-school, and when that is followed he sees no place for Supplemental Lessons. Before the question was passed finally, Rev. Crittenden explained that supplemental lessons should particularly be the 23d Psalm, the Apostles Creed, &c.

Then the topic, "Evergreen Sunday-schools," was opened by Rev. Zeigler, which he explained means the Sunday-schools kept up all the year around, keeping always abreast of the times, and, like the evergreen, maintaining their verdure and freshness.

After a hymn by the choir, Rev. Mr. Crittenden opened the children's meeting. Rev. Mr. Furst delivered a brief talk to the young folks and was followed by Revs. Prideaux and Cook, all of which were appropriate and interesting.

Austin Curtin, Geo. W. Ganoe and R. Crittenden were elected delegates to the State Convention in 1885.

A collection for the expenses of the county association was taken. It amounted to $4.42 and from schools $5.00. Rev. W. R. Whitney dismissed the afternoon session with the benediction.

The choir sang an opening hymn for the night session, after which Rev. Mr. Stohl, P. E. U. B. church, Altoona district, offered a prayer. Pres. Furst opened the subject of "The Special Province of Sunday-schools in Relation to the Temperance Cause." He began by saying that we are in danger of going too far in the temperance cause; that, unless care be exercised, it will suffer more from its friends than its enemies. We must, therefore, use caution in handling the subject. He paid a glowing tribute to the W. C. T. U. and believes they are doing a noble work in the direction of temperance. He uttered numerous beautiful and truthful things in reference to the temperance training of children. Rev. Mr. Stohl followed in a good speech. Rev. Whitney, of the M. E. church, Stormstown, was the next speaker, and dwelt on the subject at considerable length. Rev. Prideaux, being called on, also responded quite happily. He agreed with Mr. Furst and urged the preaching of the Gospel unceasingly and in this seemingly indirect way to strike at the very root of the evil. Rev. Whitney again defined his position and reiterated that the matter is not preached or talked about enough. Rev. Mr. Zeigler then obtained the floor, announcing that he is not at all timid in approaching the subject and delivered quite an entertaining speech. After Rev. Prideaux had asked if intemperance is the greatest sin in the world, the topic closed.

After another hymn by the choir the next and last topic was opened by Rev. Whitney. The topic, "The Bible Study for all People," was treated by Revs. Zeigler and Furst.

Rev. Prideaux returned thanks to the officers and people in very touching remarks. The doxology was sung, and Rev. Furst pronounced the benediction. The convention adjourned to meet in Philipsburg in 1885.

The weather was all that could be desired. The attendance was good from the beginning to the close of the convention and the interest great. The convention was a success in every way. To Budd Thompson, Rev. Baker, Alex. Chaney and wife, Miss McKinney and others of Port Matilda is due the praise for the excellent local arrangements. The well-trained choir, under the leadership of Miss Mina Goheen who presided at the organ, added much to the enjoyment of the occasion.

Rev. S. E. Furst, President.
Austin Curtin, Secretary pro tem.

—Mr. Louis Doll received intelligence on Monday morning of the death of his brother-in-law, William R. Felty, who resides near York, Pa. Mr. Felty will be remembered by our citizens as at one time a resident of this place. He was a marble mason and was located where Mr. S. A. Stover's marble yard is now situated. He was quite prosperous in business affairs and accumulated about $10,000 in this place, erecting the frame building now occupied by Mr. Richard and Mrs. Whiteman. He was also a soldier of the late war and was quite conspicuous for bravery and devotion to duty in times of danger. After leaving Bellefonte he lived on a farm near York and at the time of his death was the owner of three farms. He leaves a large family.

—Mr. Augustus Hoover is beginning the erection of two frame houses on Curtin street.

DEMOCRACY'S JUBILEE.

A Demonstration in Honor of an Event which Probably Did Not Occur.

The Democrats of Bellefonte, in common with others in several of the cities of the United States, have persuaded themselves that their candidate for President was elected, and accordingly offered a sacrifice of enthusiasm in his honor on Friday night. Desperate efforts were made to render the affair an entire success and Mr. Hammon Sechler, a very popular gentleman, was appointed chief marshal for the occasion. Money was collected to defray necessary expenses and the attendance of the faithful from all the surrounding settlements was earnestly solicited. The News is charitable enough to remember that such an undertaking is entirely new to the Democrats, that nine-tenths of those who celebrated on Friday night had never before taken part in such an affair, and therefore is prepared to pronounce it quite successful in many respects.

Late in the day, active preparations for illuminations and decorations were apparent, flags and Chinese lanterns appearing in all directions. Soon after night-fall numerous brass bands and motley groups of men and boys made their appearance and after the aforesaid men and boys had secured torches they took up their positions on some of the side streets prepared to move when the parade would begin its line of march. The streets became densely crowded with people and the illuminations which appeared one by one turned night into day. The sharp report of the fire-cracker caused the horses to rear and plunge while here and there a rocket or Roman candle vainly tried to climb into the sky.

When the parade started it moved from the Diamond to Linn street, passing east along that thoroughfare and countermarching to Spring. Then it moved south to High and west along the latter thoroughfare, countermarching to Spring, then to Bishop. Very little order was maintained in the parade. The line though long was exceedingly straggling and numbered about 600, including about all the brass bands of this section. A large number of the paraders were on horseback. The banners were humorously inscribed and contained nothing very objectionable, while there were several extremely amusing features in the parade.

The first conspicuous banner was that of the old Hancock Legion. A banner bore the legend:

"Who killed Cock Logan?
I, said Grammar,
With my little hammer,
I killed Cock Logan."

Then there was one with an inscription about the post-office; another giving the number of electoral votes the respective candidates will have, according to these arithmeticians, etc. There was a representation of the Democratic party returning from the sylvan groves up Salt river; another of Ben Butler; and the most amusing of all were the followers of Belva Lockwood with Miss McDougall in the chariot. These devoted followers of the female candidate were dressed in woman's apparal, carried gay parasols, smoked pipes and had inscribed on their banners such sentences as "No Night Keys," "Keep away from the Lodge," "Buy me a Sealskin Sacque," etc.

The fiery word "Victory" on the Watchman office was, in our opinion, the neatest bit of illumination in town. The Jail mansion, as usual, was brilliant. Chinese lanterns and flags were suspended from the trees in the Court House yard. A lantern hung from about every window of the Brockerhoff House. The Brockerhoff residence was luminous with candles, colored paper in the conservatory windows, and a transparency in front of the entrance, from which the party standard bearers looked forth. Sheriff Lingle's Spring street residence was very brightly and tastefully illuminated, the light shinning through the gay-colored paper. Mrs. Lane's beautiful grounds and handsome house presented a scene of fairy-like beauty, while the transparency exhibited at Mr. Jackson's residence contained portraits of Hendricks and the other fellow. On Linn street about the only residences that honored the event were those of H. Sechler Judge Orvis and Mr. Harper. Mr. Munson's residence on Allegheny street was also quite brightly illuminated.

We congratulate the Democrats on the success of their efforts to honor Mr. Hendricks and that other fellow, who is really such an ignoble specimen of humanity that we dislike even to mention his name in the News. If any of the eminently respectable and fastidious members of that party can find comfort in the thought of such a person in the White House they are welcome to it.

—The county schools are moving along prosperously this year.

Personal Penciling.

Thomas Dunlap, a well known hotelist, has opened a new hotel at Peale.

Leonard Rhone is in Washington City, D. C., attending the National Grange.

'Squire Duck and lady and Mr. A. F. Hunter, of Millheim, are at home again after a trip toward the setting sun.

Mr. James Milliken, one of Bellefonte's most prominent citizens, returned on Friday evening from New York City.

Miss Annie Spear, daughter of William T. Spear, returned on Friday from Chambersburg, Pa., where she has been visiting friends since last June.

Rev. Dr. Vincent, the most prominent Sunday-school man in this country and the originator of the "C. L. S. C.," will visit Williamsport on the 9th of next month.

Mr. Meitzler, who lives at the Loop not far from Centre Hall, is recovering quite rapidly from serious injuries received several months ago, one of his legs being crushed beneath a falling tree.

Mr. Malin, the telephone superintendent, returned Saturday from York county, where he spent three days hunting. As a result of his skill, he brought home fifty-six quails and a pheasant.

W. D. Holliday, formerly freight agent for the Bells Gap railroad with his residence at Bells Mills, has accepted the superintendency of Mr. Miller's extensive sand works at Sandy Ridge.

Mrs. Satterfield, of Middlesex, Pa., who visits her relatives in this vicinity annually, is now tarrying among them. She is the daughter of the venerable James Hamilton and is always warmly welcomed by her friends.

Hon. S. T. Shugert has retired from the Centre Democrat and that paper will hereafter be controlled by Messrs. Frank and George Bible. If there is any virtue in a name, the paper should be wonderfully improved as the wisdom and excellence of the Bible will fill its columns.

Death of Mrs. Anne Parr Hubley Lyon, the Oldest Resident of this Borough.

On Thursday evening at 7 o'clock, the lady whose name occurs in the above title expired at the home of the Misses Benner on High street in this borough. Mrs. Lyon was the step-mother of our honored fellow-citizen, ex-Burgess S. S. Lyon, and was the oldest resident of this borough and in all probability of the county. She was 96 years of age on the 21st of October. Deceased was born in Lancaster county, in this State. Her maiden name was Anne Parr Hubley. She married John Lyon, Esq., of Pennsylvania furnace, being his fourth wife. She resided at Pennsylvania Furnace until after the death of Mr. Lyon, thirteen or fourteen years ago, when she selected Bellefonte for a place of residence, boarding with the Misses Benner. The peaceful life and the length of days which she completed shows the wisdom of her selection. It is thought that her choice of Bellefonte in which to pass her declining years was the result of a visit to this place with her father when quite young. Her father was a lawyer and came to Bellefonte at the time mentioned on professional business, Anne accompanying him.

Deceased leaves no children, although there are a large number of step children and other relatives who will affectionately cherish her memory. The funeral will take place on Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock from the residence of the Misses Benner.

—There are prospects that the streets will soon be lighted all the year around whether there is moon or not. The seemingly simultaneous movement of citizens and the council to effect this end will surely accomplish the desired object.
